JFK Will Give 'Rocky' Fill-In On Cuba Crisis

Bids For More Bipartisan Support

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy moved Sunday to extend bipartisan support for his stand on Cuba while his administration took some comfort from early Latin-American reaction to the invasion fiasco.

The White House announced the President will see New York's Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller Tuesday afternoon to give him a personal fill-in on Cuba. And press secretary Pierre Salinger said Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson would go Tuesday to Independence, Mo., to see Democratic former president Harry S. Truman.

Salinger added that Johnson's visit would be a follow-up to a phone call Kennedy made to Truman last Friday.

Responsible administration figures were not inclined to minimize the seriousness of the defeat suffered by the United States and the forces of anti-communism. But they found at least some sizeable crumbs of comfort in early reactions within the hemisphere.

On the positive side, was a declaration by the presidents of South America's two largest nations—Jani Quadros of Brazil and Arturo Frondizi of Argentina—affirming their joint stand against "direct or indirect interference by extracontinental factors" in hemisphere affairs. Another favorable concrete action was Honduras' breaking of diplomatic relations with Cuba.

There also was the cheering fact that no Latin-American government has echoed Soviet cries of outrage against the U. S. role in the Cuban invasion effort. In fact, Uruguay was reported to have rejected vigorously a virtual demand from the Soviet Embassy for condemnation of the United States. Presumably, similar pressures are being exerted in other hemisphere capitals, thus far without effect.

Kennedy's pending contacts with Rockefeller and Truman were described as being for the purpose of giving leaders of both parties full information. But it seemed obvious they also are intended to mobilize the widest possible support for the President—not only for what he has done and said but for what he may feel compelled to do in the future to deal with the thorny problem of Communist power and prestige in Cuba.

Cuba Leader Says Rebels Must Be Shot

Castro Denounces U.S. Administration As Thugs, Bullies

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Fidel Castro told the Cuban people Sunday "the threat of Kennedy is much like the threat of Hitler," and denounced the U.S. administration as thugs and bullies who threaten the world with war.

"We have won over a reactionary, aggressive, brutal enemy," the bearded prime minister said in a four hour and 23-minute radio-TV speech in Havana reviewing last week's guerrilla invasion of Cuba.

Castro told the Cubans "counter-revolutionaries must be shot," indicating the firing squad may await captured rebels and others seized in Cuba's widespread roundup of suspects. The prime minister put the number of rebel prisoners captured at 458.

The speech, Castro's first public appearance since a week ago Sunday, was delivered with what appeared to be deliberate calm, despite the harshness of the words. Castro reviled President Kennedy and U.S. leaders over and over.

He said the United States risked its world prestige in backing an invasion of Cuba and lost it when the invasion went down to "total defeat."

"The threat of Kennedy is much like that of Hitler," he said. "Hitler threatened small countries. Kennedy threatens small countries."

"We have been patient through killings, bombings, aggression and so forth, but our patience can give out."

Invasion Smashed in 72 Hours

The invasion, which he said was crushed in 72 hours by his forces, was like the surprise attacks of the Nazis and the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Castro told his audience.

"Imperialism must pass," he cried.

Castro said that on the day of the rebel invasion, "Yankee imperialism suffered its first major defeat in Latin America." This drew prolonged applause.

"The world rises in our favor," said Castro. "After what? After victory. They admire the way the Cuban people destroyed in less than 72 hours the invasion of the mercenaries, an invasion organized in the Pentagon."

"The United States placed its prestige on this operation and they have lost their prestige. Now they look ridiculous."

"Now, if they were able to make this mistake, why couldn't they be capable of an even greater mistake that could cost one knows not what to humanity."

"They have become a bunch of thugs, of bullies that threatens the world with war, threatens Cuba with intervention."

CIA Chief Dulles Assailed

Castro heaped scorn on the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency. President Kennedy should toss out the chief of the CIA, Allen W. Dulles, Castro said.

"Why? Because he deceived him (Kennedy) too, as he deceived the mercenaries. What did we do to the mercenaries? We tossed them out into the sea again. This invasion of mercenaries organized by the United States was a kind of Normandy that did not even end in a Dunkirk—they were not even able to embark."

Hopes Brighten For Congress To Quit In July

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's legislative program took a big forward stride last week, spurring hopes of congressional leaders for adjournment late in July.

Three major bills moved close to enactment and several others were advanced toward the show-down stage.

With the period of legislative dilly-dallying apparently at an end, leaders believed they could produce a record of accomplishment impressive enough to make an all-summer session unnecessary. Earlier, they had gloomily talked of late August or even early September as their adjournment target.

Poised for final votes this week are administration-backed bills dealing with aid for depressed areas, minimum wages and federal judgeships.

A compromise measure providing aid for areas with chronic unemployment problems passed the Senate last Thursday. It had cleared the House earlier in different form and was carried for a final House vote Wednesday that would send it to the President.

The Senate also passed a House-approved measure increasing minimum wages and extending coverage to additional workers. But it made changes necessitating a conference to work out a compromise. Final action on the compromise seemed likely this week in both branches.

Little difficulty was expected in reaching an agreement on a compromise bill creating new federal judgeships. Differences between versions passed by the two branches were not considered serious enough to keep the bill from a final vote this week.

In the same situation were different measures providing extra compensation for children of unemployed persons. A quick compromise appeared likely.

Britain Even Counts Tramps In New Census

LONDON (AP)—Even homeless wanderers were included Sunday night when census forms were distributed to Britain's 50 million or so inhabitants.

Police turned out in force to make a tally of tramps. Railway conductors distributed forms to people on overnight train trips. Hotel operators were charged with seeing that all their guests this evening were counted. Members of the Forestry Commission searched out Gypsies living in brightly painted wagons parked in hundreds of country lanes.

The enumerators had a somewhat easier task counting the usual suburban households. But even so, problems developed in some cases.

Quite a few people thought the whole idea of writing answers on a government paper constituted an invasion of personal privacy. The great majority fell into line, however, when informed they could be fined 10 pounds ($28) if they failed to have their forms ready for collection Monday morning.

Lucille Ball Faints During Performance

NEW YORK (AP)—Lucille Ball fainted and fell to the floor Saturday night at the beginning of the second act of her hit musical "Wildcat."

A spokesman for the show said Sunday the comedienne will be back Monday night in the show, which has no Sunday performance.

Doctors said Miss Ball, who has an extremely active role in the musical, collapsed from fatigue and effects of a viral infection that has plagued her for months. The physicians advised a long rest.

Proof Eichmann Fatally Beat Boy To Be Offered

JERUSALEM (AP)—Adolf Eichmann's Israeli prosecutors disclosed Sunday they will offer proof the man they call a master of the Nazi science of massacre murdered one Jew with his own hands.

A qualified Israeli source said witnesses will give evidence of the murder in the court where Eichmann now is on trial for crimes against humanity and against the Jewish people, accused of being the mastermind behind the slaughter of six million Jews.

Eichmann is not specifically charged with murder in Israel's formal indictment against him but the proof will be introduced, the prosecution source said, to refute Eichmann's argument that he was only a subordinate concerned with keeping Nazi deportation trains running from assembly points all over Europe to wartime extermination camps in the East.

2. To show that Eichmann harbored a pathological hatred of Jews despite his claim he never was anti-Semitic.

Atty. Gen. Gideon Hausner alluded to the barehanded murder in his opening prosecution statement. But it was not made clear then that proof would be introduced. According to Hausner, Eichmann flew into a rage when he caught a Jewish boy stealing peaches from a tree in the garden of a home taken over by the Nazis in Hungary during the war, seized the boy and beat him to death.

In tape-recorded memoirs of his role in the Nazi extermination machinery, Eichmann declared he was "always a dutiful official who did what I was ordered to do, but I never killed a man."

Five Men Held After Gunfight Fatal To Three

SNEEDVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Twenty-five state troopers armed with submachine guns and carbines arrested five men early Sunday shortly after two deputies and a constable were killed in a gun battle that climaxed a mountain feud.

The troopers rushed to this isolated community in the Cumberland Mountains Saturday night to preserve order. They arrived after Sheriff Verlin Maxey was seriously wounded and two of his deputies killed in the battle with a constable, who also died, and his relatives.

Blocking off the town's few streets shortly before midnight, the troopers began a methodical search for the men who participated in the ambush of the Hancock County officers. The fugitives were found, some in the homes of friends, early Sunday morning. They surrendered without resistance.

A sixth man, blinded by tear gas fired by Maxey before he was shot in the stomach, was arrested at the scene of the shooting, a house just outside the city limits.

The men were taken to the county jail, and authorities expressed apprehension that the feud would erupt in other areas. A crowd of some 200 persons gathered in groups on the streets and near the jail Sunday morning, but they appeared to be curious rather than trouble-some. They later dispersed without incident.

Killed were deputies Alex Morris, 47, and Lon Tyler, 48, each the father of three children, and Constable C. B. Oakes, 32, slain by officers' bullets after leading Maxey and his deputies into the ambush.

Held without bond were George Myers, 57; E. A. Myers, 31; James Allen Horton, 19, nephew of Oakes, all of Sneedville; Carl Myers, Miamiburg, Ohio, Oakes' brother-in-law, and Earl Myers, 34, Franklin, Ohio.

Twisters Rip Towns In Iowa And Illinois

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes swirled out of a turbulent squall line carrying swaths of damage through Iowa and Illinois Sunday.

At least one person was killed. More than a dozen others were injured.

The twisters flattened homes and buildings, destroyed an airport at Marshalltown, Iowa, hurled cars and trucks off highways and downed power and telephone lines.

Twin tornadoes skipped along a 130-mile path from Marshalltown to near Waterloo, Leland Fry, 51, was killed by flying bricks when one twister battered a church in Garrison, Iowa. Six others attending the service were injured.

Garrison, a community of about 500, was one of the hardest hit. Other Iowa towns in the tornado path, all reporting extensive damage, were Vinton, Tama, Clemons and Green Mountain.

At Marshalltown, an estimated 25 private planes were ripped from moorings and rolled into a mass of jumbled wreckage. Hangars at the field were leveled.

A tornado cut a 30-mile swath of destruction across northeastern Illinois, touching down at Lorenzo, about 50 miles southwest of Chicago.

The twister moved eastward through Wilton Center and Peotone, leveling farm buildings over a wide area. Tracks of the Santa Fe and Gulf, Mobile & Ohio railroads reportedly were blocked near Lorenzo.

A mother and child were injured at Peotone when their trailer home was overturned by high winds.

At Joliet, 40 miles southwest of Chicago, the storm unleashed a half-inch of rain in three minutes. The city was battered by hailstones up to three inches in diameter. Hundreds of windows were broken. Power lines were down through much of a two-county area.

Illinois State Police reported trucks and cars were blown on their side or off the road.

The violent weather was part of a wide belt of spring thunderstorms rolling across the Plains States from Nebraska to Michigan, an area pummeled by wind, hail and rain the past three days.

Winds up to 73 miles an hour churned up a duststorm at Scottsbluff, Neb., stopping traffic. A Frontier Air Lines DC3 attempting a takeoff was pitched onto a plowed field. No injuries were reported.

President Attends Mass, Rests At Estate

MIDDLEBURG, Va. (UPI)—President Kennedy spent a leisurely day in the rolling hills of Virginia Sunday, storing up energy for another week on the tense diplomatic front.

The President and his wife drove to noon Mass said by the Rev. Albert F. Pereira at the Middleburg Community Center, then returned to Glen Ora, their hunt country estate outside this small town.

Monday morning, weather permitting, Kennedy planned to fly by helicopter direct from Glen Ora to Andrews Air Force Base to welcome President Sukarno of Indonesia. The two leaders then planned to motor into Washington together. If the weather is bad, Kennedy will get up early and drive to Andrews Field.

Reds Will Hold All Top Cards At Laos Parley

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Laotian crisis is expected to move shortly from the battlefield to a conference where the Reds will hold the top cards and U.S. negotiators must bargain stiffly to keep Laos neutral.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk planned to journey to the diplomatic conference for its opening sessions. He looked for a Laotian cease-fire announcement by Monday as a precondition for the parley.

Although final arrangements have not been completed, it was understood that the major powers have agreed the 14-nation gathering should start about May 12. The expected site: Geneva.

Current plans are for Rusk and other foreign ministers to open the conference. After that, the U.S. negotiation team would be headed by an ambassador. Some authorities expect the parley to last well beyond a month.

All this is assuming that the cease-fire takes place. Washington has been seeking a halt in the fighting with mounting urgency since Communist-backed rebels began their current drive on the royal Lao government last December.

Rusk told the American Society of Newspaper Editors Saturday night that harring some untoward event he expects the Soviets and the British to issue a cease-fire call within 24 to 28 hours. Britain and the Soviet Union have been discussing the issue in their capacity as cochairmen of the 1954 Geneva negotiations which ended the Indochinese war.

The U.S. government was expected to issue a public endorsement of the cease-fire call shortly after it is proclaimed by the British and Soviets.

Rusk figured the cease-fire could become effective promptly.

Prince Philip, Tony Not Getting Along Too Well

LONDON (AP)—Prince Philip, sports-loving husband of Queen Elizabeth II, was reported Sunday to be finding it hard to get along with Antony Armstrong-Jones, the society photographer who married Princess Margaret.

The London Sunday Dispatch said a state of antipathy exists between the two men, whose interests and temperaments are poles apart.

Columbia Frederick Mullally claimed the prince and the commoner have failed to hit it off since Armstrong-Jones married the attractive princess nearly a year ago. In fact, Mullally said, Prince Philip actively resents the presence of Armstrong-Jones in the innermost circles of the royal family.

The report drew nothing but frigid silence from court officials, who always decline to comment on gossip about the family figures around the throne.

Mullally said Philip betrayed his feelings about Armstrong-Jones at a luncheon he addressed in London last week.

The prince referred in passing to Armstrong-Jones as "my brother-in-law," and then added quickly: "Well, he isn't really, but you know the chap I mean."

Mullally said the remark was good-humored in tone "but it was delivered with an inflection and an accompanying facial expression that poised the phrase only too narrowly midway between irony and sarcasm."

By dictionary definition, Armstrong-Jones is Queen Elizabeth's brother-in-law, not Prince Philip's. Philip is 39, Tony 31.

Security Forces Bolstered In Wake Of Algerian Coup

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle Monday placed France virtually on a war footing to combat a military insurrection in Algeria—and a possible parachutist attack on France.

Shortly after De Gaulle invoked almost absolute powers, under the constitution, to deal with the insurrectionists, Prime Minister Michel Debre went on a nationwide radio-TV hookup to warn the population that a parachute attack from Algeria could be expected at any moment.

There were reports early Monday that paratroops already had taken off from airfields in Algeria.

Cultural Affairs Minister Andre Malraux was quoted as saying a paratroop landing could be attempted in the next three hours.

Security forces throughout the nation were ordered to be in readiness. In Paris an extra 10,000 specially trained riot and security forces were called out to join an already strong force stationed at vital points.

The atmosphere in the capital was electric. Frenchmen hung by their radios for news. The capital was rife with rumors.

Algiers radio maintained a stream of broadcasts declaring the insurgents were gaining strength, and relaying mysterious coded messages apparently aimed at right-wing extremists in France.

Armored Units Take Positions

At some roads entering Paris, loyal armored units were reported to have taken positions to oppose any entry into the city by paratroop forces.

At the airfields of Le Bourget and Orly, the two big fields serving Paris, the Debre speech immediately attracted a scattering of curious Frenchmen, mostly youngsters.

Despite the rumors and tension in Paris and metropolitan France, there was no report of any actual landing anywhere in the nation.

The French Information Ministry termed absolutely false one report that insurgent paratroops had landed at Rambouillet, 28 miles southwest of Paris.

Debre said the government had information that the insurgents had transport planes ready to drop paratroops on various airports in France, particularly those in the Paris area.

The government radio announced it would stay on the air throughout the night. Listeners were asked to alert the nearest police station if they saw the least suspicious movement indicating action hostile to the government.

Demonstrations Banned

Under his nearly absolute powers, De Gaulle banned all demonstrations in Paris and was expected to take similar action throughout France.

Debre announced that as a result of information received by the government, all incoming and outgoing flights from Paris airports were forbidden as of midnight.

As Debre spoke there were reports of heavy troop movements in the Paris region as the government acted to meet any threat.

The downtown Paris area surrounding the residence of De Gaulle and Debre was swarming with security forces.

Debre said that at the first alert of a parachute attack, the population would be warned by the blasting of sirens normally used for air raid exercises.

He said that at the sound of the sirens, the population should pour into the streets on foot and in automobiles to "convince these deceived soldiers of their heavy error."

Salan's Escape Irks French

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Gen. Raoul Salan is believed to have crawled through a window in his hotel apartment before dawn Sunday to escape to Algiers. His arrival there was reported by the insurgent-run radio.

Salan, senior military officer in the generals' revolt in Algeria, had been in Madrid for six months and the French had asked Spanish officials to make sure he remained here.

The government in Paris was openly irked by Spain's failure to do so, especially after a new promise from the Spanish Foreign Ministry Saturday.

Officials at Madrid's Barajas Airport said Salan was believed to have left on a chartered Spanish plane with three Spaniards who had filed a flight plan for a trip to the Spanish Mediterranean island of Majorca. The officials said airport police checked the papers of the three Spaniards before they left.

Reds Will Hold All Top Cards At Laos Parley

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Laotian crisis is expected to move shortly from the battlefield to a conference where the Reds will hold the top cards and U.S. negotiators must bargain stiffly to keep Laos neutral.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk planned to journey to the diplomatic conference for its opening sessions. He looked for a Laotian cease-fire announcement by Monday as a precondition for the parley.

Although final arrangements have not been completed, it was understood that the major powers have agreed the 14-nation gathering should start about May 12. The expected site: Geneva.

Current plans are for Rusk and other foreign ministers to open the conference. After that, the U.S. negotiation team would be headed by an ambassador. Some authorities expect the parley to last well beyond a month.

All this is assuming that the cease-fire takes place. Washington has been seeking a halt in the fighting with mounting urgency since Communist-backed rebels began their current drive on the royal Lao government last December.

Rusk told the American Society of Newspaper Editors Saturday night that barring some untoward event he expects the Soviets and the British to issue a cease-fire call within 24 to 28 hours. Britain and the Soviet Union have been discussing the issue in their capacity as co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva negotiations which ended the Indochinese war.

The U.S. government was expected to issue a public endorsement of the cease-fire call shortly after it is proclaimed by the British and Soviets.

Rusk figured the cease-fire could become effective promptly.

Prince Philip, Tony Not Getting Along Too Well

LONDON (AP)—Prince Philip, sports-loving husband of Queen Elizabeth II, was reported Sunday to be finding it hard to get along with Antony Armstrong-Jones, the society photographer who married Princess Margaret.

The London Sunday Dispatch said a state of antipathy exists between the two men, whose interests and temperament are poles apart.

Columbiaist Frederick Mullally claimed the prince and the commoner have failed to hit it off since Armstrong-Jones married the attractive princess nearly a year ago. In fact, Mullally said, Prince Philip actively resents the presence of Armstrong-Jones in the innermost circles of the royal family.

The report drew nothing but, frigid silence from court officials, who always decline to comment on gossip about the family figures around the throne.

Mullally said Philip betrayed his feelings about Armstrong-Jones at a luncheon he addressed in London last week.

The prince referred in passing to Armstrong-Jones as "my brother-in-law," and then added quickly: "Well, he isn't really, but you know the chap I mean."

Mullally said the remark was good-humored in tone "but it was delivered with an inflection and an accompanying facial expression that poised the phrase only too narrowly midway between irony and sarcasm."

By dictionary definition, Armstrong-Jones is Queen Elizabeth's brother-in-law, not Prince Philip's. Philip is 39, Tony 31.

Dictatorial Power Taken By De Gaulle

Security Forces Bolstered In Wake Of Algerian Coup

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle Monday placed France virtually on a war footing to combat a military insurrection in Algeria—and a possible parachutists attack on France.

Shortly after De Gaulle invoked almost absolute powers, under the constitution, to deal with the insurrectionists, Prime Minister Michel Debre went on a nationwide radio-TV hookup to warn the population that a parachute attack from Algeria could be expected at any moment.

There were reports early Monday that paratroops already had taken off from airfields in Algeria.

Cultural Affairs Minister Andre Malraux was quoted as saying a paratroop landing could be attempted in the next three hours.

Security forces throughout the nation were ordered to be in readiness. In Paris an extra 10,000 specially trained riot and security forces were called out to join an already strong force stationed at vital points.

The atmosphere in the capital was electric. Frenchmen hung by their radios for news. The capital was rife with rumors.

Algiers radio maintained a stream of broadcasts declaring the insurgents were gaining strength, and relaying mysterious coded messages apparently aimed at right-wing extremists in France.

Armored Units Take Positions

At some roads entering Paris, loyal armored units were reported to have taken positions to oppose any entry into the city by paratroop forces.

At the airfields of Le Bourget and Orly, the Debre speech immediately attracted a scattering of curious Frenchmen, mostly youngsters.

Despite the rumors and tension in Paris and metropolitan France, there was no report of any actual landing anywhere in the nation.

The French Information Ministry termed absolutely false one report that insurgent paratroops had landed at Rambouillet, 28 miles southwest of Paris.

Debre said the government had information that the insurgents had transport planes readied to drop paratroops on various airports in France, particularly those in the Paris area.

The government radio announced it would stay on the air throughout the night. Listeners were asked to alert the nearest police station if they saw the least suspicious movement indicating action hostile to the government.

Demonstrations Banned

Under his nearly absolute powers, De Gaulle banned all demonstrations in Paris and was expected to take similar action throughout France.

Debre announced that as a result of information received by the government, all incoming and outgoing flights from Paris airports were forbidden as of midnight.

As Debre spoke there were reports of heavy troop movements in the Paris region as the government acted to meet any threat.

The downtown Paris area surrounding the residence of De Gaulle and Debre was swarming with security forces.

Debre said that at the first alert of a parachute attack, the population would be warned by the blasting of sirens normally used for air raid exercises.

He said that at the sound of the sirens, the population should pour into the streets on foot and in automobiles to "convince these deceived soldiers of their heavy error."

"The government has taken all measures to oppose this attack,"

Demos Consider Forcing Action On Medical Care

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leaders saw an opening Sunday to force congressional action this year on President Kennedy's controversial medical aid to the aged bill.

A key Democrat, Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, N.M., said plans were being considered to graft a modified version of the program to a House-passed Social Security bill.

He told a reporter it was a possibility, but that it was still in the planning stage. He said the House bill was the logical place to attach the Kennedy program.

The vehicle for this maneuver would be a bill passed by the House last Friday making a number of changes in the Social Security law, among them a provision permitting men to elect to retire at age 62 at reduced retirement benefits.

Meantime, Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich., predicted that Congress would approve the program this year or next.

McNamara also said on a radio program that the American Medical Association was the chief foe of the President's proposal.

The President told a news conference last Friday that it was "very possible" there would be a vote in the Senate on the program this year, possibly as an amendment to some other measure.

He acknowledged that the "House is a different problem" because of the known opposition in the ways and means committee, which must clear it before the House can vote on it.

Anderson is the sponsor in the Senate of the administration's $1.1 billion-a-year program to finance medical benefits for 14.2 million persons 65 and over through higher Social Security payroll taxes.

The largest insect known is the Central American moth. It has a wingspread that ranges from 11 to 18 inches.

French Revolt Creates Peril For Moslems

Editor's Note — Associated Press correspondent Andrew Borowiec has been assigned to the Algerian story for nearly four years—in Paris, Algiers and Tunis. In the following dispatch he analyzes what the current French army revolt is likely to mean to the vast majority of Algeria's population — the Moslems.

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

PARIS (AP) — The French army's revolt in Algeria has created a new danger for the Moslem nationalist rebels.

The nationalist command in Tunisia fears the seizure of power by mutinous French generals may result in stepped-up attacks against remaining guerrilla bands.

In recent months, while gaining strength politically in Algeria's major cities, the nationalists have been losing ground in the field.

In its desire to keep Algeria French at all costs, the mutinous military is bound to intensify efforts to smash the rebellion's armed strength.

Leading the army insurgents is Gen. Maurice Challe, who during 16 months as French commander in Algeria obtained considerable success with his "steamroller" plan to crush the Algerian rebels.

Recently, the army has been complaining that civilian authorities were advising it to "go easy" in the war on the rebels "because we are on the threshold of negotiations."

Staff officers bitterly complained their operational activities were being muzzled.

Many of the commanders of the French army are convinced the war could be won if France proclaimed its determination to hold on to Algeria. Then, they say, Moslem nationalists would have no hope of succeeding and resistance would collapse.

The military cite the May 1958 revolt, during which Moslems by the thousands flocked to proclaim loyalty to France in the face of a military coup.

Few Moslems are likely to demonstrate pronationalist sympathies while paratroop machine guns control Algiers. They know the army means business.

The Moslems rioted in favor of the nationalist revolt last December when they were convinced the French government favored Moslem "self-expression." In the present circumstances, few Moslems are likely to show their true feelings, which generally favor the nationalist cause.

Highway Traffic Blocked By Plane

GLEN BURNIE, Md. (AP) — The forced landing of a light plane on Maryland 3 northwest of here Sunday blocked traffic for about 45 minutes, State Police reported.

Bound for Friendship International Airport, the pilot, W. Dorsey Hiteshaw, 49, a Baltimore contractor, said the landing on the center strip of the highway was necessary because of a drop in fuel pressure.

Neither Hiteshaw nor a passenger, David L. Wilson, also of Baltimore, was injured.

Normandy invasion of D-Day in World War II and the evacuation of British troops from Dunkirk earlier in that war.

"Now," Castro continued, "they are angered, threatening. What are we going to do in the face of Kennedy's threats? Take fear? No. We will smile."

Castro said the battle against the invaders had been a bloody one and a great number of "our companions" had lost their lives.

Castro appeared in good health, although his voice was hoarse. In contrast with previous appearances, he seemed at times to be almost subdued in his delivery.

Occasionally he thumped the table with a clenched fist to stress a point, occasionally gestured with his hands, but the delivery lacked the fire and violence of previous speeches.

Going into the details of the invasion, Castro quoted what he called U.S. press reports that the invaders could not risk a total and crushing defeat.

"But nevertheless they chose the risky course of attacking in force," he said. "They took the risk because they were confident of the success of their plan. For us, it was preferable that they arrived together, with a single force, so we could discharge on them the weight of our forces. But we also had taken steps to counter the other type of attack, too—the type of attack with small forces in different places."

"We knew they had a trained paratroop battalion and numerous planes. We knew they were coming, because of a series of events and declarations, the establishment of the council of revolutionary worms, Mr. Kennedy's famous white paper on Cuba, and other political events and statements."

Castro denied the Cuban air force had Soviet MIG jet fighters with which to attack the invaders. He said counterrevolutionary forces spread the rumor that the MIGs were there, and the audience laughed when he said "I wish we had had some MIGs there." But they did use rockets, he said, and one hit an enemy vessel, putting a whole battalion out of operation before it could land.

Castro said rebel leaders were so confident the U.S. invasion plan would succeed that "they even sent their sons." This was a reference to the sons of Jose Miro Cardona and Tony Varona.

He also declared rebel leaders "exaggerated the number of mercenaries they said had been recruited. They spoke of 4,000 to 5,000 mercenaries and they were not even able to get that many. What landed here were the mercenaries from Guatemala. They have another little group at Caimanera (Guantanamo) but those are poorly organized and ill-equipped."

Dictatorial

Debre said. Far from discounting the insurgents in Algeria, the Paris government was obviously of the opinion that such previously respected commanders as Gen. Maurice Challe, the insurgent chieftain in Algeria, were determined and could be expected to have a well thought-out plan aimed at toppling the De Gaulle government by force if need be.

While Debre spoke, Radio Algiers continued to claim that the insurgent military junta had won over the vast majority of the 500,000 men in the French army in Algeria.

These claims could not be verified. All communications with the North African territory have been cut off since the insurgents seized Algiers and its government buildings at dawn Saturday.

Government officials in Paris admitted that normally loyal military commanders in Algeria refused to fire on other French units.

Brokers' staffs are working night and day to handle the avalanche of orders.

They're happy about the money they're making but worried about the effects of the invasion by amateur investors and speculators.

"People are cashing in government bonds, making loans against insurance policies and taking money out of savings to buy stocks," said one broker who didn't want to be quoted by name.

"We don't like it. We don't think it's healthy."

This Wall Street expert said firms holding membership in the New York Stock Exchange have $1.39 billion in funds on hand waiting to be invested.

Sylvan C. Coleman, a general partner in the big brokerage firm, E. F. Hutton & Co., gave this analysis of the buying surge:

"1. It is a reflection of new confidence in the national administration's ability to bring about a recovery in business in the second half of this year."

"2. Buying is coming in from many sources based on a fear of growing inflation stemming from indicated budgetary deficits."

"3. There is an increasing amount of buying from institutions of all sorts—pension funds, profit-sharing funds, new investment funds, etc. This is essentially compulsory buying. They've got to invest their funds, and they're putting a larger percentage of their available funds into equities."

"4. Increased trading activity itself and increased confidence in the business outlook are causing many new people to enter the market. The number of new brokerage accounts opened in the first quarter is far higher than a year ago."

He didn't mention another factor—the old urge to make a fast dollar. Stock prices started pushing up just before the presidential election last fall and the scramble to buy warmed up in earnest after the first of the year.

Some brokers immediately began calling it the Kennedy bull market. They said people's confidence was inspired by the belief that if business didn't rise of its own power the new administration would take action to make it climb.

The real phenomenon of the 1961 bull market is the invasion by the little man. Hundreds of thousands who once stood on the sidelines and let their wealthier fellows buy stocks now are in there pitching.

The newcomers generally are professional and business men of the middle-income class and higher paid skilled workers.

Neutral Phouma Hails Red Peace Efforts In Laos

TOKYO (AP) — Prince Souvanna Phouma of Laos said Sunday in Peiping his people are depending on Communist and neutralist countries to help restore peace in Laos. Little credit was given the West for diplomatic efforts expected to produce a cease-fire in a day or so.

The neutralist leader, recognized by the Communists as the legal premier of Laos, visited the Chinese Communist capital at the windup of a world tour to gain international support for a neutral policy in Laos. His remarks were reported by Peiping's New China News Agency.

Although Souvanna changed his schedule after learning he would not be able to see U. S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk in Washington and flew to Peiping from Moscow, he noted that the United States had agreed to a neutral policy for Laos.

Nevertheless, he criticized the United States for building up the troops of Premier Prince Boun Oum's pro-Western government in Vientiane "counter to the principles (Washington) professed."

Vientiane requested the aid to hold off advancing rebels, whose supplies came from the Soviet Union.

The rally was attended by Premier Chou En-lai and Foreign Minister Chen Yi of Communist China. At a banquet later, Chou joined Souvanna in criticizing the United States for setting up a military advisory group in Laos.

Peiping radio said Chou demanded U. S. "intervention" cease immediately and accused the United States of preparing for "direct participation in the civil war in Laos."

In his rally speech, Souvanna backed Peiping's claims to the Nationalist Chinese island of Formosa and a seat in the United Nations.

Bridges Urges Monroe Doctrine Reinterpretation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H., proposed Sunday that President Kennedy and Congress redefine the Monroe Doctrine to let the Soviet Union know it applies to Communist subversion and indirect aggression.

Bridges, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee and senior GOP member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said his suggestion was prompted by the seriousness of the situation in Cuba.

In the past, he said in an interview, the Monroe Doctrine's warning to other nations to keep hands off the Western Hemisphere has been interpreted as applying to movements to troops and warships or other overt acts of aggression.

But in the present day, he said, "our security can be threatened and the Western Hemisphere violated" by the many devious methods employed by the Communists to advance their aims.

U.N. Denies Charge

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP) — President Moise Tshombe charged Sunday that 30 of his white mercenaries have been ill-treated while imprisoned by U. N. forces. The U. N. representative here, Georges Dumontet, told reporters later: "I was able to give President Tshombe formal assurance that his allegations were wrong and could be denied most strongly."

Only a few dozen white people were living in the Idaho territory, immense tract of 90,000 square miles, in 1860.

Judgeship For Grady Depends On Bar Support

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mayor J. Harold Grady's chances of getting appointed to a federal judgeship by President Kennedy apparently depend now on what support he can muster from the state and city bar associations.

Grady's prospects have been rated good by some Democratic leaders, but they point out that he so far has not received the required professional recommendations.

There reportedly has been an attempt to reopen the State Bar Association's list of acceptable candidates, prepared about a month ago. But no action has been taken to add the mayor's name to the list.

One spokesman for the association's judiciary committee said the list was prepared before its members were aware that Grady was interested in a judicial appointment.

Tawes To Sign Budget, Cigarette Bills Today

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes is scheduled to sign Monday some 350 bills from the 1961 Maryland General Assembly, including one to curb the operations of a financial insurance firm headed by Baltimore County delegates.

Among others are the state's $520 million budget, a 6-cent state-wide cigarette tax, bills to provide local governments with $9.5 million more in state aid and a host of local measures ranging from the taking of crabs in Worcester County to the keeping of skunks in Washington County.

The mammoth stack of bills awaiting the governor's signature will be the first he and Senate President George W. Della and House Speaker Perry O. Wilkins have signed since the legislature adjourned April 1.

Still being screened by the attorney general or Tawes' aides are approximately 320 others which will be signed or vetoed at a later date. In this latter batch is the administration's bill to extend the sales tax to purchases costing over 25 cents from its present starting point of 51 cents.

The insurance bill to be signed Monday was part of a savings and loan controversy which rocked the legislature, mostly in committee rooms and in maneuvering off the floor of the two houses at the recent 90-day session.

Sponsored by Del. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Harford, who has since become U. S. attorney for Maryland, it provides that no firm may pledge more than 10 per cent of its assets to insuring any one savings and loan account.

The bill hit directly at operations of the Security Financial Insurance Corp., in which Dels A. Gordon Boone, Charles Culver and Roy Staten of Baltimore County are oficers and stockholders. Boone also is majority floor leader of the House.

It was testified the firm, with total assets of $1 million, was insuring deposits of about $38 million in 30 associations.

As a controversy broke over the bill and its apparent defeat in the House Banking and Insurance Committee, of which Culver was vice-chairman, a compromise was worked out by Tydings and the Baltimore County delegates to give Security Financial two years in which to comply. The bill then passed without further trouble.

The governor also is expected to sign another measure which stirred controversy in committee. It will place the commissioner of motor vehicles, John R. Jewell, in the state merit system.

Tawes had recommended in his state-of-the-state message that the post, formerly regarded as a major political plum, be given more security. The House Ways and Means Committee voted down the bill, but it was revived and passed late in the session with a prod from the administration.

Maryland's first extensive driver training program for the public high schools also will receive the governor's approval. It calls for raising the fee for learner's permits from $1 to $5 and spending the extra $4 on driver education, which would be financed on a matching basis with local governments under the voluntary program.

Lee Indicates College Crisis Looms In State

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—The shortage of college facilities in Maryland is critical and there should be no delay in solving the problem, Del. Blair Lee III of Montgomery County has indicated.

His remarks came at the 6th annual Maryland Education Conference at the University of Maryland Saturday.

The legislator urged Gov. Tawes to appoint a special higher education committee as authorized last month by the General Assembly. "I hope the governor can make the appointments within a month," Lee, chairman of the House Education Committee, said.

Speaking as a member of the conference panel, he told about 160 persons that the state's full-time college enrollment of nearly 37,000 is expected to double within the next nine years.

Hence, he said, it would be "impossible to exaggerate the importance of the study committee." Another speaker, Dr. John D. Russell, professor of education at New York University, said high school counselors need more training in how to advise teen-agers on selection of colleges.

Postmaster General Raps Birch Society

FREDERICK (AP)—Postmaster General J. Edward Day Saturday night strongly assailed the John Birch Society at a Jefferson-Jackson day dinner.

Day said three former chairmen of the National Association of Manufacturers were listed as members of the Birch group—an organization of political conservatives.

He declined to name the men, but he did say they are the kind of people who are "fearful of the foreign born, of labor unions, of intellectuals and of the rank and file of common people."

"They believe that all of the unemployed are lazy and that farmers should give up and leave their farms," the postmaster told a gathering of about 600 persons.

He said that the kind of people found in the Birch group—founded by Robert Welch, a retired Massachusetts candy manufacturer—are usually found in the "opposition party."

He told the Democratic gathering the Birch Society stands for survival of the fittest—under the guise of individual initiative.

Day also urged backers of President Kennedy to support the administration's legislative program by writing to their congressmen.

In other areas, the postmaster announced his department had dropped its experimental program with so-called facsimile mail—a device for sending messages by coaxial cable and microwave radio.

He said the program threatened private industry and the post office had turned it over to private agencies for development.

The postmaster said in an interview that the department had purchased the parcel post phase of the automated post office developed by the Aerojet-General Division of the General Tire Company.

Day made the announcement after taking a tour of Aerojet's Frederick plant. He said the new unit, costing between $600,000 and $675,000, would be installed in Miami, Fla.

Maryland Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan and Comptroller Louis Goldstein also addressed the dinner.

New Flight Route

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—Communist Czechoslovakia's airline says it will inaugurate a weekly flight from Prague to Phnom Penh next month.

The city of Medicine Hat, Alta. is built over a natural gas pool. As early as 1890, townspeople illuminated the streets with natural gas. The lights glowed night and day because it was cheaper to let them burn than to pay someone to turn them on and off. Rudyard Kipling called Medicine Hat, "the city with all hell for a basement."

Civil War Highlight Reenacted

HARPERS FERRY, W. Va. (AP)—Harpers Ferry has fallen again to Confederate troops.

Flames roared up Saturday night from inside a frame structure representing the U. S. government arsenal razed 100 years ago by a Union detachment that fell back across the Potomac River into Maryland April 18, 1861.

The advance of Virginia cavalry and infantry units, the destruction of the arsenal and the retreat of the federal troops were re-enacted in an hour-long ceremony as part of Civil War Centennial observances.

Some 1,000 spectators, living the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks and the streets of this town at the juncture of the Potomac and Shenandoah rivers, watched the ceremony in a drizzling rain.

The scene of the simulated burning was the original location of the arsenal on Shenandoah Street, near the present headquarters of the Harpers Ferry National Monument.

Burning oil in troughs within the building provided the flames during the re-enactment, but fire-resistant cloth spread on the structure in advance of the show spared it from actual destruction.

Residents of nearby Martinsburg, garbed in Civil War attire, played roles of persons who took part in the burning of Harpers Ferry 100 years ago.

Forty-five members of the Sharpsburg Rifles took the part of the Union troops in the re-enactment. The Confederate forces were played by members of Company A, 1st Maryland, Confederate States army, Frederick, Md.; the Henry Kyd Douglas Cavalry Brigade of Knoxville, Md.; Company K, Virginia Infantry, Front Royal, Va., and Company B, 17th Infantry, Frederick, Md.

The ceremonies were preceded by a concert by the Harpers Ferry High School Band.

Park Use Fees Recommended

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Users of public park facilities should pay for the privilege and thus relieve taxpayers of part of their burden, Del. W. Dale Hess of Harford County has stated.

Hess, a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, spoke before some 200 delegates at the Governor's Conference on Recreation and Parks Saturday.

"I firmly believe that after the state or county governments have provided the capital improvements for a recreational area and (also) the necessary personnel (governments) have faced their responsibility fairly and squarely," the Democratic legislator said.

Remains Of Romans Slain By Hannibal Believed Located

ROME (AP)—An Italian archaeologist has found a burial ground he believes holds the remains of Romans slain by Hannibal in the battle of Lake Trasimeno almost 23 centuries ago.

In 6 weeks skin completely cleared and clean. First time in 30 years. Thanks for your marvelous products." This much abbreviated report tells of a user's success with a dual treatment for psoriasis. ## Park Use Fees Recommended

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Users of public park facilities should pay for the privilege and thus relieve taxpayers of part of their burden, Del. W. Dale Hess of Harford County has stated.

Hess, a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, spoke before some 200 delegates at the Governor's Conference on Recreation and Parks Saturday.

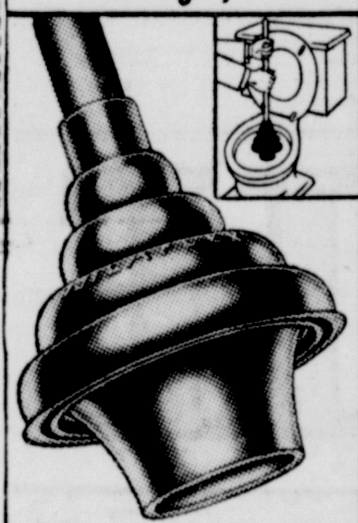

"I firmly believe that after the state or county governments have provided the capital improvements for a recreational area and (also) the necessary personnel (governments) have faced their responsibility fairly and squarely," the Democratic legislator said.

Remains Of Romans Slain By Hannibal Believed Located

ROME (AP)—An Italian archaeologist has found a burial ground he believes holds the remains of Romans slain by Hannibal in the battle of Lake Trasimeno almost 23 centuries ago.

Prof. Giancarlo Susini says an aerial survey helped him locate the burial ground not far from the scene of the battle, in which Hannibal's Carthaginians ambushed Flaminius' Roman army of 25,000 on June 24, 217 B.C. Lake Trasimeno is midway between Rome and Florence.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—The most ex- one he's playing in real life. He's cited girl at Vic Damone's open- ing at the Cloister, was Valerie of his present illness, but I am Allen, who has snagged the Helen very glad to correct a story that of Troy role in "The War of he's taking cobalt treatments. He Troy." "This is the greatest thing isn't — and he does get up al- that has ever happened to me," most every day to have luncheon said Valerie, "and I'm grateful with Rocky and their daughter that Arlene Dahl is having a Maria. It's true that he's in bed a baby and had to bow out of "The War of Troy." Steve Reeves is great deal of the time, but he does get up every day. The pray- her co-star, and she leaves for Rome this weekend. ers that are being said for Coop- Valerie told me that the way come not only from all of us in she landed this role was when Hollywood who know and love Georgia Ferroni, European di- him, but from all over the world, rector, spotted her in an Italian since the news of his grave ill- dubbed episode of "77 Sunset ness was made public. I have known about his illness for three weeks, but was sworn to secrecy and this is one story I had no desire to write.

Gary Cooper has never played a more heroic character on the motion picture screen than the I had heard that Gene Tierney had bowed out of "Bachelor Flat," so I sent right to head- quarters — Producer Jack Cum- mings at 20th. He said, "She hasn't bowed out, because she's never been in it. There was never any talk of Gene for this particular picture." — which I was glad to hear be- cause I thought she might be sick again.

"We have Celeste Holm signed, and that's about as far as we've gone in casting," said Jack who is producing this little number for Bob Goldstein. And by the way, Jack has two pictures going — and is very high in his praise for boss Goldstein.

A very pleasant cocktail party was the one given by Cobina Wright and Fern Teller Gimble, for Fern's father T. Sufferin Teller and her step-mother, "Tom- my," as he is called by his friends, is a handsome socialite and at one time was a well-known golfer.

It was also a party for Fern's sister Wendy, who announced her engagement to James Allen, formerly of the Milwaukee Braves. He injured his knee and is now in the forestry service. They met when Wendy was visit- ing Fern, who is making her home here with her children. The bridegroom-to-be, his brother, and the Teller family were all having a wonderful time. There are five girls in the Teller fam- ily, but not all of them could be present.

The marriage will be held in Al- tadena at St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church followed by a reception at the Anadele Country Club.

As we were leaving, lovely Dana (Wynter) and Greg Bautz- er walked in. I was so glad to see Greg back from New York. Clifton Webb tells me that Dick Barthelmess came through his throat operation, the removal of his vocal cords, successfully. Dick's courage is helping him, says Clifton.

"I'm leaving the end of May for Europe for Les McCarey's pic- ture "The China Store." I play the old priest," Clifton went on, "and William Holden the young priest. I have been studying hard and enjoying my research. I have a Catholic friend who is helping me."

I was out with the younger set at a party honoring Duane Eddy at the Villa Capri. Duane, who is making his motion picture debut in "Thunder of Drums" at MGM, is 22, and he's often called the top guitarist. He's been first on three American polls—Billboard, Cash Box, and American Band- stand—and Musical Express, a British magazine.

Duane's a handsome lad and very modest. He has made many records and is one of the lads who went to Australia with Brenda Lee. He's studying very hard now on his acting career. Never saw so many disc jock- eys. I also met Dick Chamber- lain, who plays the Lew Ayres role in the "Dr. Kildare" TV se- ries. Raymond Massey had al- ready told me about him. I was sorry to miss seeing Richard Boone, who Duane said has been helpful to him in his movie. Boone left before I arrived at the party. Luana Patten, John Smith and Carole Wells (of "National Vel- vet") were among the younger guests.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Watch Out For One Wrong Word!

Did someone just make you mad. Did something just arouse your ire? Hold your tongue! In- stead of a whiplash reply, instead of a crabby complaint, wait a while . . . then, write it, don't say it.

Wait a little longer, then read what you have written. You'll probably never deliver your in- dignant message—at least, not INDIGNANTLY! And it will be just as well that you didn't. Very little of what is said or repeat- ing in a mad mood is worth re- peating or reading.

Even if you are an entirely in- nocent victim of someone else's wrath and perfectly justified in your anger or impatience, hold off that harsh retort until you've had a chance to think about the episode that set you spinning.

Bad moods are like the mumps . . . very communicable, and the time and intensity of exposure. Each is spread among more and more people by a chain re- action.

Did you notice how another's "one wrong word" caused you to flare up? That's how quickly you can be linked to a long chain of vexation that, may have come into being a hundred people, and a hundred miles, away from you. One wrong word was spoken at the wrong time. At another mom- ent, the affect upon you might have been entirely different.

It might not have made you mad at all. Reacting reasonably, you could have replied, explained or complained (if necessary), in the detached frame of mind that favors friendly understanding, along with forgiving—and forget- ting.

Why let the fire of your fury forgetting. Why let the fire of your fury forge another link in that chain of wrath? Chances are, with the element of control, you'll break the chain once and for all. If the occasion does demand your re- sponse, a cooling-off period will keep you from coming up with some ill-chosen outburst; spite- fully ignited with self-pity, heated enough to hammer the first link in a new and nastier chain of re- sementment.

Timing is twice as significant when you're tempted to seal bit- terness and fury in a stamped, addressed, envelope. In the length of time it takes mail to arrive at its destination, there can be a lot of changes, in your mood and perspective.

Too late, for a letter. You only hope that the one who receives your letter is in a good mood, on a good day for him and able to take your blow and ward it off without striking out at the next person who comes his way.

The nine planets of the solar system usually are divided into two general groups: terrestrial and Jovian. The terrestrial plan- ets — Earth, Mercury, Venus and Mars — resemble one an- other in structure and probably in chemical composition. The Jovian planets — Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto — are entirely different in substance. Astronomers speculate they may consist largely of solid hydrogen.

Scout Council Gives Report On Year's Activities

More than 2,500 boys participated in scouting activities last year, according to the annual report of Potomac Boy Scout Council to the County United Fund.

The 96 units affiliated with Potomac Council has a total membership of 2,571 boys as of De- cember 31, with spokesmen for the CUF agency reporting the total was an all-time high.

Scouts conducted many activities during 1960, the golden jubilee of the founding of the Boy Scout movement, the annual report notes. A total of 656 boys, or 56 per cent of the enrollment, spent a week or more camping at the council facility at Oldtown.

The Scout Council, directly sup- ported by CUF, notes that many of the activities were of a non- scouting nature. These included help in distributing posters for various organizations, assisting in traffic control at the Cumberland Fair, food and clothing collections and aiding during visits of the bloodmobile here.

The council report also said its affiliated units distributed door- knob hangers in a "Get Out The Vote" campaign in connection with a nationwide "Good Turn" project.

Willis V. Smith, council scout executive, said one measure of the effectiveness of the CUF agency's program is the number of Cub Scouts and Explorers who advance in rank. Potomac Council rated high in this phase during 1960 since 1,199 boys qual- ified for advancement. The number of merit badges earned last year, 1,252, also represented a 25 per cent increase over the pre- vious year.

Clarence Lippel, council presi- dent, said training of leaders is emphasized, pointing out that 75 per cent of the unit leaders had completed basic training as of December 31, and that 41 per cent of the assistant leaders had similar training.

Potomac Council, which is sup- ported by CUF members in Alle- gany and Mineral counties, main- tains scout units in Allegany and Garrett counties, as well as in Mineral, Hampshire, Grant and Hardy counties, West Virginia.

Light also announced that clean- ing of the Ridgedale reservoir was completed Friday and the facility restored to service. The water facility was drained Thurs- day.

Moving Citizens Should Get Vote

Next election of a President and vice president of the United States is three and a half years away, but it's not too soon to begin doing something about correcting one of the major inequities that was apparent in the last general election.

This is the disfranchisement of those who move from one state to another just before an election. In their new homes they cannot meet the residence requirement.

In our society today, moving is frequent. As often as not, it occurs because an employee is transferred by the firm for which he works and is thus involuntary. A few states have done something about the problem. California, Missouri, Ohio, Oregon and Washington have eliminated or reduced residence requirements for voting for President and vice president (but not for congressmen and state officials). Connecticut and Vermont have extended voting privileges for these offices to former residents for periods of 24 and 15 months respectively, after they have left the state, or until they establish residence in another state.

This makes sense. A citizen should be permitted to vote, either in the voting district from which he moved or in the one he moved to.

These Days

Revolt From Republicanism

Constantly mail comes in from many parts of the country which says that the United States "is a republic not a democracy," which nowadays is a play on words. Government is the exercise of power by those who are in control of the machinery for the management of men and production and distribution. The United States is a representative republic which means that this country is governed by representatives of the people in Congress assembled in accordance with the Constitution.

There are those who say that the trend in this country is toward democracy which, in the United States, would mean the submission of government to direct pressure of the people. The assumption of those who want to keep this a republic rather than a democracy is that the structure of government must be retained, despite wars and economic dislocations. No country can afford to be static and the United States is not static. Government is constantly changing its form and application as the affairs of the country change. It is impossible to engage in wars of the nature of World War I, World War II, the Korean War and the Cold War and function under the constitutional limitations of the Jeffersonian era. Constitutional changes, by amendment or judicial decision, beginning with the first Ten Amendments and coming down to the Brown Decision have been constant.

The War Between the States resulted in significant constitutional alterations by war. The 14th and 15th Amendments were basic constitutional changes. Therefore, those who want to keep this a republic rather than a democracy, are raising an issue which is not of significance at this moment in our history. In fact, what we need to face now is the fact that for better or for worse, this country is in a period of transition, the nature of which no one can foretell.

H. S. Tuttle of Eagle River, Wisconsin, pertinently asks how the country is to be saved:

"... By electing a President who could and would reverse the tide? That is patently impossible the way conventions are rigged and national elections handled these days."

"Or by electing a roster of Congressmen who can and will fend off the terrific pressure of special interest groups, and do the right thing by this country and its people? ..."

What Tuttle advocates is not so much impeachment as recall and his advocacy is for democracy, that is, for direct decision by the people, not through representatives chosen for a fixed period, but by popular pressure. If the people do not like a decision of the Supreme Court, the Court should be impeached, according to this doctrine. Judges would not exercise freedom of judgement but would live in terror of a mob that would, without knowledge or preparation, dictate decisions. The terror of the French Revolution was of this nature. Instead of orderly government, anarchy would prevail. Mr. Tuttle jumps all over Chief Justice Earl Warren. Of him, he writes:

"Warren, as I read the record, has time after time disgraced his high office, disregarded the Constitution, flaunted and abused the Congress, rendering its work futile, disenfranchised the states of the union from rights set forth in the Constitution, coddled Communists and helped the conspiracy at every turn."

"Having committed such widely acknowledged atrocious deeds, why should not Warren be called to the bar of justice to answer? That is the one civil way of bringing culprits in high places to account — impeachment. If we do not avail ourselves of this safeguard we slide to oblivion."

This is really amazing. I do not hold with many of Justice Warren's views but these paragraphs represent a violent response to political agitation. In the 1930's such words and phrases appeared in "The Daily Worker," the organ of American Communism. In 1960, members of the John Birch Society employ such language and accept such ideas in the name of conservatism.

Were such thinking not so widespread and such a genuine and sincere response to distress at the vast changes that are taking place in this country, one would put it all down to ill-considered repetition of agitation slogans. But actually, Mr. Tuttle's views are proof that many of our people do not understand our form of government at all and they do not understand that their liberties are assured only if the liberties of others are assured by the structure of the law, no matter how unpleasant the law may be.

Cuba Outcome Seen Major Disaster For U.S.

By Stewart Alsop

Editor's Note: Joseph Alsop is on a brief vacation. During his absence his brother Stewart will write the Alsop column.

"Cuba looks like the American Suez." This was the assessment of one American official who knows as much as anyone—which is not very much—about what has actually happened in Cuba. "And Hungary, too," another American official added.

The first man meant that the United States appears to have suffered in Cuba a setback as disastrous as that Britain and France suffered in 1956 when their Suez adventure failed. The second meant that, as during the Hungarian uprising, the United States has again stood aside while men who had been encouraged to oppose Communist tyranny were destroyed.

These views may still prove too gloomy. But as of this writing the belief that the outcome in Cuba represents a genuine and major disaster for the United States is almost universal in the government. There are also those who believe that, in order to retrieve the disaster, American forces may yet intervene in Cuba, despite the repeated flat statements to the contrary by President Kennedy and Secretary of State Rusk.

To understand something of what has happened, and why, it is necessary to consider what President Kennedy found on his desk when he took office. He found, first, an Eisenhower administration policy paper, known as "The Castro Must Go Paper," which ruled that the Communist infection in Cuba must be eliminated. With this ruling the new President agreed in substance. As he remarked to an aide, "We can't go on living with this Castro cancer for ten years more."

Second, the President found a detailed plan for eliminating the infection by force. The plan calls for a Cuban ground contingent drawn from some 8,000 Cuban refugee volunteers of military age, to be supported in an invasion of Cuba by American air cover and logistic support. The plan had, in fact, gone well beyond the planning stage. Already some 5,000 Cubans had been trained, and at one point in the autumn the invasion had actually been scheduled—it was then called off by President Eisenhower, in consultation with the President-elect.

From the first, the new President had strong doubts about the scheme, and especially about the proposed American participation. His subordinates were divided, with the Pentagon and the Central Intelligence Agency generally favoring direct action, while the State Department favored the "give Castro enough rope to hang himself" theory.

As the weeks passed, events began to increase the pressure for action. Some 180 Soviet jet aircraft began arriving in Havana in February, and the intelligence reported that by mid-May the 250 Cuban pilots being trained in Czechoslovakia were ready for action. The Castro regime had been starving out the anti-Castro guerrillas, especially the big force of 28,000 men in the Escambray Mountains, and the guerrillas were thus a wasting asset.

In this situation, the Cuban refugee leaders called for action before it was too late. Some claimed hopefully that the Castro regime would disintegrate, like the walls of Jericho, at the first landing of rebel troops. The intelligence services did not subscribe to this theory. But intelligence estimates indicated that there was a good

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

FOREIGN TRAVEL — When President John F. Kennedy makes his state visit to France next month, he'll be accompanied by his pretty wife Jacqueline, descendant of a French family, a former student at the Sorbonne and a confirmed Francophile.

Unlike her immediate predecessor, Mamie Eisenhower, Jackie enjoys going places, is a confirmed airplane traveler and an enthusiastic tourist. She fully expects to accompany her husband on most of his foreign travels, which may girdle the globe before his White House term ends.

It is extremely unlikely, that daughter Caroline will accompany her celebrated parents on any of these foreign trips.

HARVARD — Apparently incensed at the great loss of its professors to the Kennedy administration, Harvard is requesting resignations from most of them, instead of permitting them to take indefinite leave for government work. It should be noted, however, that the famed university has made no request that Kennedy himself resign from his post on the governing board.

The current fight for an increased minimum wage recalls the uproarious reception given in the House during a previous debate on the same issue, when an impassioned woman legislator declared in a speech to her colleagues, "Unless you accept my amendment, 100,000 women will be uncovered."

Some Scientists Wary Of Food Additives

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The attitude of people toward potential cancer producers (carcinogenic agents) varies from the emotional to the rational. Several years ago, when I visited an atomic energy center, one of the directors told me Americans have nothing to worry about. Another director was scared to death: in his opinion radiation was such a threat no one was long for this world.

If top scientists do not agree on the potential dangers of cancer producing rays, how can the general public be expected to form an opinion? There is one encouraging feature—if the threat were obvious, all would be in agreement.

The same situation applies to chemicals in food and in the air we breathe. The scientist who believes that cancer comes from such contamination is wary of everything added to food, for example, to improve its color, appearance, and preservation. These individuals are concerned and want action.

This is why an amendment was attached to the food and drug law in 1959 that says in part, "... that no additive shall be deemed to be safe if it is found to induce cancer when ingested by man or animal or, if it is found, after tests which are appropriate for the evaluation of the safety of food additives. ..."

No one wants to ingest cancer producing foods but the law is vague on how to prove a substance is a cancer producer. The "appropriate tests" are filled with inconsistencies, limitations, and drawbacks.

The lawmakers go back to 1915 when tumors were produced on the ears of rabbits by repeatedly painting the skin with tar. Since then, thousands of chemicals have been painted on the skin, inhaled, injected or inserted into the body of all sorts of animals. Some developed malignancies whereas others did not, even though carcinogenic material was painted on the skin throughout their lifetime.

In addition, we do not know if a positive test means that the substance will produce cancer in man. Another moot question is whether painting the skin with a concentrated chemical is comparable to using minute amounts in food. Unbiased minds are needed to interpret the results. Let's hope good judgment and wisdom will prevail.

TOMORROW: Epileptic attacks due to flickering lights.

CATARACT — Mrs. D. R. writes: Does cataract cause any symptoms except loss of vision?

REPLY — No.

SCRAPING TEST — Mrs. D. writes: Will a D & C test detect cancer?

REPLY — Yes—of the uterus.

Sleuths Use Camera, Field Glasses To Prove Food-Drug Act Violation

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—U. S. District Judge Ben Connolly of Houston will hand down sentences today of interest to everyone drinking orange juice for breakfast. He will sentence four officials of Cal-Tex Citrus Juices, Inc., for diluting orange juice with sugar and water, then selling it in 22 states as pure.

Behind the conviction of the Cal-Tex officials is one of the most exciting cops-and-robbers sleuthing jobs ever done by the Food and Drug Administration. It took four years of probing, plus field glasses and a movie camera, to get the evidence.

For a long while the Food and Drug Administration has been getting the small end of the appropriations lollipop when it came to money from Congress. It has limped along on such a pinched budget that its inspectors were able to inspect food plants only once every 11 years. However, one of the little-noticed accomplishments of President Eisenhower was to get more money for Food and Drug.

And some time ago, Commissioner George Larrick and his assistant, Goldhammer, suspected that there was something phony about "Vita-Pakt" and "Meadowgold," the trade names of the orange juice sold by Cal-Tex through Borden's, Beatrice Foods, Foremost Dairies, and other dairy chains. One thing that made them suspicious was the label describing Vita-Pakt as the way "nature made it — nothing added."

When Food and Drug made a chemical analysis its suspicion was fully justified. The product was half orange juice, half sweetened water.

Cal-Tex officials vigorously denied this, solemnly and piously insisted what they were selling was pure orange juice. Meanwhile they kept on brazenly watering their product.

Gumshoes For Food — So Commissioner Larrick assigned one of his top sleuths, Walter R. Moses, to get the evidence.

This proved difficult. When Inspector Moses called to inspect the plant, dilution abruptly stopped. He never could catch them. He couldn't even find any sugar on hand.

So Moses and two assistants rented a vacant apartment next door and kept the Cal-Tex plant under scrutiny with high-powered field glasses and a movie camera. During a period of 11 days they saw only four truckloads of oranges arrive at the plant, but numerous loads of sugar, 2,000 pounds at a time, delivered in an unmarked panel truck. After each delivery the truck was hosed down so as to remove any telltale crystals of sugar. And in order to hide the sugar, only 20 bags were delivered at one time. This was small enough so the sugar could be hidden behind a flat wall of packing cases, in an outbuilding from where it was carried into the plant by relays of men with buckets.

After Inspector Moses had caught this with his movie camera, he got a search warrant and swooped down on the premises. He also found that Cal-Tex officials went to the extent of cashing small checks at the bank, made out to Cal-Tex petty cash fund, then using the cash to pay for the sugar.

Final result: A Federal jury in Houston handed down a guilty verdict for Cal-Tex President Gordon Van Liew, Vice President Dell Van Liew, Arthur Becker, the production manager, and Verne Madison, president of the Transportation Leasing Corp. They were charged with conspiracy to violate the Food and Drug Act.

J. Edgar Hoover's Boss — Attorney General Robert Kennedy is a Justice Department boss whom J. Edgar Hoover will never forget.

Hoover is a careful man — a meticulous administrator whose personal appointments are scheduled with the precision of fine clockwork. Before a caller is received, Hoover knows all about him, and has FBI files at hand, if necessary, to help.

Consequently, the new Attorney General's informality is quite a shock. For Bobby Kennedy has taken to dropping in — unheralded and unannounced — and in his shirtsleeves, at that — when he has an FBI matter to discuss.

If Hoover isn't there, he simply says "I'll wait."

Pistol-Packing Swing-Men — Gen. Joseph Swing, Eisenhower's West Point classmate, whom Bobby Kennedy continued as Commissioner of Immigration, has added a new twist to his rifle. On top of virtually kidnapping Carlos Marcello, a New Orleans Mafia man, and whisking him off to Guatemala, though he was born in Tunis, Commissioner Swing has put his Immigration Patrol through an interesting pistol competition.

The borders between the United States and Mexico and between the United States and Canada are the longest unarmed borders in the world. We take pride in this. If a Mexican wetback should come wading across the Rio Grande River when it's low, he can be stopped with one yell from the Immigration Patrol. It doesn't take expert marksmen to wing him.

However, Commissioner Swing transported a troop of border patrolmen to the Flamingo Pistol Tournament in Coral Gables, Fla., the other day and to the Midwinter Pistol Championship in Tampa. The officers attending these matches — at government expense — were Presley A. O'Gren and Roy A. Huntley of El Paso; Harry E. Aiken of Tucson, Ariz.; H. R. Mitchell of McAllen; Thomas Mataya of Phoenix, Ariz.; Elmer W. Hilden of Oceanside, Cal.; William C. Joyner, Philip B. Mosher, Glenn A. Smith and Clyde Curley, all of Florida.

There's nothing in the nature of a training school in either of these matches. The contestants fire with special target pistols, not generally carried for immigration service use, and the course of fire had no comeback aspect.

What the trip amounted to was a government-subsidized Florida vacation. (Copyright, 1961, by The Bell Syndicate)

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The joys of bachelorhood are enormous. My cup runneth over, all down the front of my suit. A week ago, I flew up from Miami to New York with three suitcases and a briefcase. I'm still trying to find the handkerchiefs. They cannot walk, although I cannot say this of the sex.

A bachelor has complete independence. He is beholden to no one. He comes and goes as he pleases. Mostly, I wonder around the lobby of the Park Sheraton because my house is still closed for the winter. I don't mind wandering, but it seems to make the house detective nervous. He wanders behind me.

At night there are a thousand things a bachelor can do. The sky is the limit. He can go to the Warner Theatre and see "Exodus" or to the Astor and see "The Hoodlum Priest." Then there is "Spartacus," if you enjoy watching Kirk Douglas breathe through his teeth at girls. I can also walk up and down Broadway, looking at the bright lights, although it seems to me I screwed them all in, 20 years ago.

There are invitations to speak at this dinner or that breakfast, but I decline them because I don't like to make the married men jealous. Have you ever washed a pair of size 36 shorts in a size 14 sink? You must be an ascetic. Have you ever stood in a shower and listened to the phone ring 20 feet away? Is there a woman to answer it? No.

Would she answer it if there was a woman? I doubt it. She would probably holler: "Will you lift your lard out of the tub, dear, and answer the phone? My nails are drying." There is nothing in the world like having a wife with wet nails, dry skin and damp hair. For a man, it sort of makes the day. It's a lift. A marital bonus.

It may not get him out of the bathtub, but it will make him think seriously of sticking his finger in a socket. A bachelor misses many of the noble things in life. Like getting out of bed and sitting on a bent bobby pin. Or sitting up in bed to see what "her" mood of the day is going to be. Or taking the first morning look at what is left of her face. Why do they all look bad at dawn?

I miss the cozy cooing, like: "Why aren't you like other men?" and "This time, hot or cold, you're going to the P.T.A. meeting," and "Don't blame me if the check bounced. My book still shows a balance of $20." And "If you think I'm going to sit around and pour your drinks for your boozing friends, you need a new slave." And "So you finally sent a few flowers to me. It must be our anniversary or I'm dead."

There is no ecstasy to match a night out together. On top of the normal marital bliss, it is almost too much. You go to a friend's house — an hour late — and there are four other couples, all devoted to each other and the women trill like frenzied birds over curtains, canape, children, coiffures, and, as the drinks are poured, they keep saying: Make mine light."

In an hour, they are half loaded and sit in the kitchen, a sacred sorority of sorrow, commiserating with each other over the tragic trivia of domestic bliss. The evening always goes on an hour or two too long, and the men end up in a corner arguing baseball, salesmanship, Russia, time-and-a-half, and debts. The women talk about themselves, men, and themselves.

When he gets her home, and they pay the baby sitter and peek in at the sleeping cherubs, they go to their bedroom and the autopsy begins. He wants to sleep. She wants to dissect. The dresser is loaded with bottles, jars and lotions and, as the eyeshadow and mascara come off, so too does her mental mask.

"I was shocked when I saw Shirley. Overnight, she's old. Just overnight. Did you see the lines in her neck? Waitles. Another five years and she'll look like a little old man."

"You don't think so? Of course you don't. Fortunately, her husband is a little bit stupid. He doesn't see the messages between you and Shirley. Don't tell me about those little glances, my friend. I have eyes. All night long I do not dot. What, dear? That's a lie. I'm as sober as you are."

"Me thinketh you protesteth too much. And the way you ate. Didn't your mother ever have a cake fork in the house? For all the attention you paid to me, I might as well have been in a coma. You think I don't know what's going on, but I'm wise to you. Will you unzipper the back of this thing, please? That is, if it's not too much trouble."

I just found the handkerchiefs. They were just where I packed them: inside an old pair of carpet slippers ...

Heywood Brown liked to tell about the zoo that imported the biggest yak ever seen in America. Every morning at breakfast time, the animal, who was fond of pancakes with maple syrup would yawn prodigiously, and get up. Of course you know what song Brown declared this brought to mind? (Don't shoot!) "Mighty Yak Arose."

Back in 1912, when William Jay Gaynor was mayor of New York, a prominent municipal judge died unexpectedly while presiding over a trial. Even before the body had been removed a brash lawyer barged into Mayor Gaynor's office and announced bluntly, "I propose myself to take the deceased judge's place."

"Nothing would please me more," said the mayor emphatically. "See if you can arrange it with the undertaker."

California, Missouri, Ohio, Oregon and Washington have eliminated or reduced residence requirements for voting for President and vice president (but not for congressmen and state officials). Connecticut and Vermont have extended voting privileges for these offices to former residents for periods of 24 and 15 months respectively, after they have left the state, or until they establish residence in another state.

This makes sense. A citizen should be permitted to vote, either in the voting district from which he moved or in the one he moved to.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky
Revolt From Republicanism

Constantly mail comes in from many parts of the country which says that the United States "is a republic not a democracy," which nowadays is a play on words. Government is the exercise of power by those who are in control of the machinery for the management of men and production and distribution. The United States is a representative republic which means that this country is governed by representatives of the people in Congress assembled in accordance with the Constitution.

There are those who say that the trend in this country is toward democracy which, in the United States, would mean the submission of government to direct pressure of the people. The assumption of those who want to keep this a republic rather than a democracy is that the structure of government must be retained, despite wars and economic dislocations. No country can afford to be static and the United States is not static. Government is constantly changing its form and application as the affairs of the country change. It is impossible to engage in wars of the nature of World War I, World War II, the Korean War and the Cold War and function under the constitutional limitations of the Jeffersonian era. Constitutional changes, by amendment or judicial decision, beginning with the first Ten Amendments and coming down to the Brown Decision have been constant.

The War Between the States resulted in significant constitutional alterations by war. The 14th and 15th Amendments were basic constitutional changes. Therefore, those who want to keep this a republic rather than a democracy, are raising an issue which is not of significance at this moment in our history. In fact, what we need to face now is the fact that for better or for worse, this country is in a period of transition, the nature of which no one can foretell.

H. S. Tuttle of Eagle River, Wisconsin, pertinently asks how the country is to be saved:

"... By electing a President who could and would reverse the tide? That is patently impossible the way conventions are rigged and national elections handled these days."

"Or by electing a roster of Congressmen who can and will fend off the terrific pressure of special interest groups, and do the right thing by this country and its people? ..."

What Tuttle advocates is not so much impeachment as recall and his advocacy is for democracy, that is, for direct decision by the people, not through representatives chosen for a fixed period, but by popular pressure. If the people do not like a decision of the Supreme Court, the Court should be impeached, according to this doctrine. Judges would not exercise freedom of judgement but would live in terror of a mob that would, without knowledge or preparation, dictate decisions. The terror of the French Revolution was of this nature. Instead of orderly government, anarchy would prevail. Mr. Tuttle jumps all over Chief Justice Earl Warren. Of him, he writes:

"Warren, as I read the record, has time after time disgraced his high office, disregarded the Constitution, flaunted and abused the Congress, rendering its work futile, disenfranchised the states of the union from rights set forth in the Constitution, coddled Communists and helped the conspiracy at every turn."

"Having committed such widely acknowledged atrocious deeds, why should not Warren be called to the bar of justice to answer? That is the one civil way of bringing culprits in high places to account — impeachment. If we do not avail ourselves of this safeguard we slide to oblivion."

This is really amazing. I do not hold with many of Justice Warren's views but these paragraphs represent a violent response to political agitation. In the 1930's such words and phrases appeared in "The Daily Worker," the organ of American Communism. In 1960, members of the John Birch Society employ such language and accept such ideas in the name of conservatism.

Were such thinking not so widespread and such a genuine and sincere response to distress at the vast changes that are taking place in this country, one would put it all down to ill-considered repetition of agitational slogans. But actually, Mr. Tuttle's views are proof that many of our people do not understand our form of government at all and they do not understand that their liberties are assured only if the liberties of others are assured by the structure of the law, no matter how unpleasant the law may be.

Cuba Outcome Seen Major Disaster For U.S.

Editor's Note: Joseph Alsop is on a brief vacation. During his absence his brother Stewart will write the Alsop column.

"Cuba looks like the American Suez." This was the assessment of one American official who knows as much as anyone—which is not very much—about what has actually happened in Cuba. "And Hungary, too," another American official added.

The first man meant that the United States appears to have suffered in Cuba a setback as disastrous as that Britain and France suffered in 1956 when their Suez adventure failed. The second meant that, as during the Hungarian uprising, the United States has again stood aside while men who had been encouraged to oppose Communist tyranny were destroyed.

These views may still prove too gloomy. But as of this writing the belief that the outcome in Cuba represents a genuine and major disaster for the United States is almost universal in the government. There are also those who believe that, in order to retrieve the disaster, American forces may yet intervene in Cuba, despite the repeated flat statements to the contrary by President Kennedy and Secretary of State Rusk.

To understand something of what has happened, and why, it is necessary to consider what President Kennedy found on his desk when he took office. He found, first, an Eisenhower administration policy paper, known as "The Castro Must Go Paper," which ruled that the Communist infection in Cuba must be eliminated. With this ruling the new President agreed in substance. As he remarked to an aide, "We can't go on living with this Castro cancer for ten years more."

Second, the President found a detailed plan for eliminating the infection by force. The plan calls for a Cuban ground contingent drawn from some 8,000 Cuban refugee volunteers of military age, to be supported in an invasion of Cuba by American air cover and logistic support. The plan had, in fact, gone well beyond the planning stage. Already some 5,000 Cubans had been trained, and at one point in the autumn the invasion had actually been scheduled—it was then called off by President Eisenhower, in consultation with the President-elect.

From the first, the new President had strong doubts about the scheme, and especially about the proposed American participation. His subordinates were divided, with the Pentagon and the Central Intelligence Agency generally favoring direct action, while the State Department favored the "give Castro enough rope to hang himself" theory.

As the weeks passed, events began to increase the pressure for action. Some 180 crated Soviet jet aircraft began arriving in Havana in February, and the intelligence reported that by mid-May the 250 Cuban pilots being trained in Czechoslovakia would be ready for action. The Castro regime had been starving out the anti-Castro guerrillas, especially the big force of 28,000 men in the Escambray Mountains, and the guerrillas were thus a wasting asset.

In this situation, the Cuban refugee leaders called for action before it was too late. Some claimed hopefully that the Castro regime would disintegrate, like the walls of Jericho, at the first landing of rebel troops. The intelligence services did not subscribe to this theory. But intelligence estimates indicated that there was a good chance that a landing would result in sufficient mass defections so that at least a sizeable area of Cuba might be held, even without overt American intervention.

The rebel government, it was argued by the activists, could then be established in the area, and quickly recognized by the United States and other anti-Castro governments. Massive aid to this recognized government would then assure the defeat of Castro, without the use of American arms.

So ran the theory. President Kennedy, despite his doubts, was at last persuaded not to veto the operation. At the same time he was also persuaded, largely through the influence of United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, to state unequivocally that American forces would not be used in Cuba.

In the days since the landings, as the news has become worse, some of the President's advisers, including a majority of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, have urged American intervention on the grounds that the alternative — to stand aside while the men we have trained and supported are destroyed — is intolerable. But the President's own public promise not to use American force in Cuba has acted as a powerful brake, and as this is written the President and most of his chief civilian advisers still strongly resist any open American intervention in Cuba.

Perhaps something will be saved from the wreckage. New efforts by the Cuban refugee forces may yet succeed, where the efforts so far made have so unhappily failed. But there is no use blinking the fact that in the eyes of the world the United States has suffered a terrible defeat. And the facts recounted above suggest that the new President may have broken his own rule, as laid down in his Inaugural Address — "while hoping for the best, we should prepare for the worst."

Sleuths Use Camera, Field Glasses To Prove Food-Drug Act Violation

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—U. S. District Judge Ben Connally of Houston will hand down sentences today of interest to everyone drinking orange juice for breakfast. He will sentence four officials of Cal-Tex Citrus Juices, Inc., for diluting orange juice with sugar and water, then selling it in 22 states as pure.

Behind the conviction of the Cal-Tex officials is one of the most exciting cops-and-robbers sleuthing jobs ever done by the Food and Drug Administration. It took four years of probing, plus field glasses and a movie camera, to get the evidence.

For a long while the Food and Drug Administration has been getting the small end of the appropriations lollipop when it came to money from Congress. It has limped along on such a pinched budget that its inspectors were able to inspect food plants only once every 11 years. However, one of the little-noticed accomplishments of President Eisenhower was to get more money for Food and Drug.

And some time ago, Commissioner George Larrick and his assistant, Goldhammer, suspected that there was something phony about "Vita-Pakt" and "Meadowgold," the trade names of the orange juice sold by Cal-Tex through Borden's, Beatrice Foods, Foremost Dairies, and other dairy chains. One thing that made them suspicious was the label describing Vita-Pakt as the way "nature made it — nothing added."

When Food and Drug made a chemical analysis its suspicion was fully justified. The product was half orange juice, half sweetened water.

Cal-Tex officials vigorously denied this, solemnly and piously insisted what they were selling was pure orange juice. Meanwhile they kept on brazenly watering their product.

Gumshoes For Food

So Commissioner Larrick assigned one of his top sleuths, Walter R. Moses, to get the evidence.

This proved difficult. When Inspector Moses called to inspect the plant, dilution abruptly stopped. He never could catch them. He couldn't even find any sugar on hand.

So Moses and two assistants rented a vacant apartment next door and kept the Cal-Tex plant under scrutiny with high-powered field glasses and a movie camera.

During a period of 11 days they saw only four truckloads of oranges arrive at the plant, but numerous loads of sugar, 2,000 pounds at a time, delivered in an unmarked panel truck. After each delivery the truck was hosed down so as to remove any telltale crystals of sugar. And in order to hide the sugar, only 20 bags were delivered at one time. This was small enough so the sugar could be hidden behind a flat wall of packing cases, in an outbuilding from where it was carried into the plant by relays of men with buckets.

After Inspector Moses had caught this with his movie camera, he got a search warrant and swooped down on the premises. He also found that Cal-Tex officials went to the extent of cashing small checks at the bank, made out to Cal-Tex petty cash fund, then using the cash to pay for the sugar.

Final result: A Federal jury in Houston handed down a guilty verdict for Cal-Tex President Gordon Van Liew, Vice President Dell Van Liew, Arthur Becker, the production manager, and Verne Madison, president of the Transportation Leasing Corp. They were charged with conspiracy to violate the Food and Drug Act.

J. Edgar Hoover's Boss

Attorney General Robert Kennedy is a Justice Department boss

whom J. Edgar Hoover will never forget.

Hoover is a careful man — a meticulous administrator whose personal appointments are scheduled with the precision of fine clockwork. Before a caller is received, Hoover knows all about him, and has FBI files at hand, if necessary, to help.

Consequently, the new Attorney General's informality is quite a shock. For Bobby Kennedy has taken to dropping in — unheralded and unannounced — and in his shirtsleeves, at that — when he has an FBI matter to discuss.

If Hoover isn't there, he simply says "I'll wait."

Pistol-Packing Swing-Men

Gen. Joseph Swing, Eisenhower's West Point classmate, whom Bobby Kennedy continued as Commissioner of Immigration, has added a new notch to his rifle. On top of virtually kidnapping Carlos Marcello, a New Orleans Mafia man, and whisking him off to Guatemala, though he was born in Tunis, Commissioner Swing has put his Immigration Patrol through an interesting pistol competition.

The borders between the United States and Mexico and between the United States and Canada are the longest unarmed borders in the world. We take pride in this. If a Mexican wetback should come wading across the Rio Grande River when it's low, he can be stopped with one yell from the Immigration Patrol. It doesn't take expert marksmen to wing him.

However, Commissioner Swing transported a troop of border patrolmen to the Flamingo Pistol Tournament in Coral Gables, Fla., the other day and to the Midwinter Pistol Championship in Tampa. The officers attending these matches — at government expense — were Presley A. O'Gren and Roy A. Huntley of El Paso; Harry E. Aitken of Tucson, Ariz.; H. R. Mitchell of McAllen; Thomas Mataya of Phoenix, Ariz.; Elmer W. Hilden of Oceanside, Cal.; William C. Joyner, Philip B. Mosher, Glenn A. Smith and Clyde Curley, all of Florida.

There's nothing in the nature of a training school in either of these matches. The contestants fire with special target pistols, not generally carried for immigration service use, and the course of fire had no comeback aspect.

What the trip amounted to was a government-subsidized Florida vacation.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The joys of bachelorhood are enormous. My cup runneth over, all down the front of my suit. A week ago, I flew up from Miami to New York with three suitcases and a briefcase. I'm still trying to find the handkerchiefs. They cannot walk, although I cannot say this of the sex.

A bachelor has complete independence. He is beholden to no one. He comes and goes as he pleases. Mostly, I wonder around the lobby of the Park Sheraton because my house is still closed for the winter. I don't mind wandering, but it seems to make the house detective nervous. He wanders behind me.

At night there are a thousand things a bachelor can do. The sky is the limit. He can go to the Warner Theatre and see "Exodus," or to the Astor and see "The Hoodlum Priest." Then there is "Spartacus," if you enjoy watching Kirk Douglas breathe through his teeth at girls. I can also walk up and down Broadway, looking at the bright lights, although it seems to me I screwed them all in, 20 years ago.

There are invitations to speak at this dinner or that breakfast, but I decline them because I don't like to make the married men jealous. Have you ever washed a pair of size 36 shorts in a size 14 sink? You must be an ascetic. Have you ever stood in a shower and listened to the phone ring 20 feet away? Is there a woman to answer it? No.

Would she answer it if there was a woman? I doubt it. She would probably holler: "Will you lift your lard out of the tub, dear, and answer the phone? My nails are drying." There is nothing in the world like having a wife with wet nails, dry skin and damp hair. For a man, it sort of makes the day. It's a lift. A marital bonus.

It may not get him out of the bathtub, but it will make him think seriously of sticking his finger in a socket. A bachelor misses many of the noble things in life. Like getting out of bed and stepping up in bed to see what "her" mood of the day is going to be. Or taking the first morning look at what is left of her face. Why do they all look bald at dawn?

I miss the cozy cooing, like: "Why aren't you like other men?" and "This time, hot or cold, you're going to the P.T.A. meeting," and "Don't blame me if the check bounced. My book still shows a balance of $20." And "If you think I'm going to sit around and pour your drinks for your boozing friends, you need a new slave." And "So you finally sent a few flowers to me. It must be our anniversary or I'm dead."

There is no ecstasy to match a night out together. On top of the normal marital bliss, it is almost too much. You go to a friend's house — an hour late — and there are four other couples, all devoted to each other and the women trill like frenzied birds over curtains, canape, children, coiffures, and, as the drinks are poured, they keep saying: "Make mine light."

In an hour, they are half loaded and sit in the kitchen, a sacred sorority of sorrow, commiserating with each other over the tragic trivia of domestic bliss. The evening always goes on an hour or two too long, and the men end up in a corner arguing baseball, salesmanship, Russia, time-and-a-half, and debts. The women talk about themselves, men, and themselves.

When he gets her home, and they pay the baby sitter and peek in at the sleeping cherubs, they go to their bedroom and the autopsy begins. He wants to sleep. She wants to dissect. The dresser is loaded with bottles, jars and lotions and, as the eyeshadow and mascara come off, so too does her mental mask.

"I was shocked when I saw Shirley. Overnight, she's old. Just overnight. Did you see the lines in her neck? Watlies. Another five years and she'll look like a little old man."

"You don't think so? Of course you don't. Fortunately, her husband is a little bit stupid. He doesn't see the messages between you and Shirley. Don't tell me about those little glances, my friend. I have eyes. All night long dot dot dot. What, dear? That's a lie. I'm as sober as you are."

"Me thinketh you protesteth too much. And the way you ate. Didn't your mother ever have a cake fork in the house? For all the attention you paid to me, I might as well have been in a coma. You think I don't know what's going on, but I'm wise to you. Will you unzipper the back of this thing, please? That is, if it's not too much trouble."

I just found the handkerchiefs. They were just where I packed them: inside an old pair of carpet slippers.

Some Scientists Wary Of Food Additives

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dollen

The attitude of people toward potential cancer producers (carcinogenic agents) varies from the emotional to the rational. Several years ago, when I visited an atomic energy center, one of the directors told me Americans have nothing to worry about. Another director was scared to death: in his opinion radiation was such a threat no one was long for this world.

If top scientists do not agree on the potential dangers of cancer producing rays, how can the general public be expected to form an opinion? There is one encouraging feature—if the threat were obvious, all would be in agreement.

The same situation applies to chemicals in food and in the air we breathe. The scientist who believes that cancer comes from such contamination is wary of everything added to food, for example, to improve its color, appearance, and preservation. These individuals are concerned and want action.

This is why an amendment was attached to the food and drug law in 1959 that says in part: "... that no additive shall be deemed to be safe if it is found to induce cancer when ingested by man or animal or, if it is found, after tests which are appropriate for

No one wants to ingest cancer producing foods but the law is vague on how to prove a substance is a cancer producer. The "appropriate tests" are filled with inconsistencies, limitations, and drawbacks.

The lawmakers go back to 1915 when tumors were produced on the ears of rabbits by repeatedly painting the skin with tar. Since then, thousands of chemicals have been painted on the skin, inhaled, injected or inserted into the body of all sorts of animals. Some developed malignancies whereas others did not, even though carcinogenic material was painted on the skin throughout their lifetime.

In addition, we do not know if a positive test means that the substance will produce cancer in man. Another moot question is whether painting the skin with a concentrated chemical is comparable to using minute amounts in food. Unbiased minds are needed to interpret the results. Let's hope good judgment and wisdom will prevail.

Try And Stop Me

Heywood Brown liked to tell about the zoo that imported the biggest yak ever seen in America. Every morning at breakfast time, the animal, who was fond of pancakes with maple syrup would yawn prodigiously, and get up. Of course you know what song Brown declared this brought to mind? (Don't shoot!) "Mighty Yak Arose."

Back in 1912, when William Jay Gaynor was mayor of New York, a prominent municipal judge died unexpectedly while presiding over a trial. Even before the body had been removed a brash lawyer barged into Mayor Gaynor's office and announced bluntly, "I propose myself to take the deceased judge's place."

"Nothing would please me more," said the mayor emphatically. "See if you can arrange it with the undertaker."

Orioles Down Robinson Top Bird Hitters

Each Obtains Three Bingles; Estrada Is Winning Hurler

BALTIMORE (AP) — Brooks Robinson and Jackie Brandt paced the Baltimore Orioles in a 13-hit spree and a 4-1 triumph over the New York Yankees Sunday.

The victory gave the Orioles the edge in their first series this season with the defending American League champions. The Orioles won two, the Yankees one and another was a tie to be replayed later.

Brandt, leading off, and Robinson, batting third, accounted for two of the Orioles runs with three hits apiece. Brandt had a double and two singles, Robinson a triple and two singles.

Mickey Mantle kept the Yankees a threat by smashing his fifth homer in nine games in the fourth inning. It tied the score by matching a first inning Oriole run on singles by Brandt and Robinson.

A balk by starting Yankee pitcher Danny McDevitt, who took the loss in his first American League appearance, helped the Orioles go ahead in the fourth.

Gus Flandros singled, went to second on the balk, and scored on singles by Ron Hansen and Earl Robinson.

The Orioles added two runs in the seventh on a single by Brandt, Brooks Robinson's triple and a double by Jim Gentile who batted two-for-two.

Pitcher Chuck Estrada was the beneficiary of the Oriole hitting outburst and a staunch relief job by Dick Hall. Although he gave up only four hits, Estrada was lifted in the seventh inning after giving up his sixth walk for his first victory in two 1961 appearances.

Hall allowed the Yankees only one infield hit in the last three innings.

Brandt's three hits raised his average to .467. He hit safely in all seven games he has played this season.

Umpire Reverses Decision, Boyer Injured On Play

BALTIMORE (AP) — A baseball umpire DID reverse his decision Sunday. And it caused manager Ralph Houk of the New York Yankees to rant and rave to the enjoyment of 18,704 fans.

The unusual spectacle happened in the fourth inning in a game with the Baltimore Orioles.

The Orioles had Ron Hansen on second base and Earl Robinson on first when Marv Breeding hit a hard grounder toward third. Clete Boyer knocked down the ball, but before he could pick it up, Hansen was sliding by and knocked the ball off the diamond.

Umpire Ed Runge at third called Hansen out for interference. The Orioles protested that Boyer had already had his fielding chance, and that Hansen did not legally interfere.

Runge called a conference of the three other umpires in the middle of the diamond. Out of the summit meeting came a ruling that Hansen was safe.

Houk came tearing out of the dugout and was joined by catcher Yogi Berra in yelling, arm-waving and foot-stamping. It was to no avail.

On top of losing the decision, the Yanks lost Boyer. The ground-hitter hit on the base of his left thumb and he had to leave the game.

The Yankees did have the satisfaction of pulling off a double play to avoid any runs being scored as a result of the reversed ruling.

Jay Hebert, Venturi Tie At Houston

Post Scores Of 276, Playoff Set Today

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La., overcame a five-stroke deficit to tie with Ken Venturi of Palo Alto, Calif., at four under par 276 for the championship of the Houston Classic golf tournament.

Venturi and Hebert will play 18 holes starting at 2 p.m. EST Monday for the championship. The winner will get $7,000 with the runner up earning $3,600.

Venturi was six under par through the first 13 holes Sunday while Hebert was only one under at that point. But Venturi picked up successive bogies on the 14th and 15th holes and birdied the 16th. He then fell back another stroke on the 17th to finish four under par.

Hebert picked up birdies on the 15th, 16th and 18th holes with the last coming on a 25-foot putt.

Bolt Finishes Third

Tommy Bolt, a former Houston pro now playing out of Crystal River, Fla., had an even par 70 Sunday to wind up with a 278 to tie for third place.

Both third-place winners were $2,500. Lionel Hebert, the younger brother of Jay, had a one-under-par 69 Sunday for a 279 total, good for fourth place and $2,200.

At even par 280 was Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., who wound up alone at fifth place and won $1,900. Henry Hanson of St. Andrews, Ill., and Freddy Haas of New Orleans were tied at 281 and won $1,650 each.

Player, Palmer Ninth

Pre-tourney favorites Gary Player of Johannesburg, South Africa and Arnold Palmer of Miami, Fla., were tied with three others at ninth place at 283. Palmer fired a three-over par 73 Sunday and Player had a 72.

Phillies Blank Chicago Twice

Win 1-0 And 6-0; Mahaffey Fans 17

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Art Mahaffey pitched a four hitter and struck out 17 — one short of tying a record — in the second game of a doubleheader Sunday as Philadelphia shut out Chicago twice, 1-0 then 6-0.

The 22-year-old right-hander, who came up from Buffalo last July and compiled a 7-3 record by season's end, had nine strike outs in the first four innings. He went into the ninth with 16 and struck out only the first batter.

The major league strikeout record of 18 in a nine-inning game is shared by Bob Feller, formerly of Cleveland, who did it in 1938, and Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles, who did it in 1959.

The Phillies won the opener on Bobby Gene Smith's homer in the ninth inning, thus ending a four-game losing streak.

John Allison had a three-run homer in the fifth inning of the nightcap, off Bob Anderson, who gave up only 5 hits through eight innings.

Baylor's Kemp Top Sprinter

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Sprinter Bill Kemp of Baylor anchored winning 880- and 440-yard baton teams and won the 100-yard dash to become the most outstanding athlete in the 36th Kansas Relays Saturday.

Kemp won the university-college 100 in the slow time of :10.1, but he bucked a seven-mile-an-hour wind. He anchored Baylor's 880 relay team that won in 1:25.1 in equaling the third fastest time for the event this season. Baylor won the 440 relay in :40.8, tying the second fastest time this spring.

Brown's Hit Wins Second Contest, 3-2

Tigers Take First Game, 3-1; Donahue Stars In Relief

DETROIT (UPI) — Dick Brown's pinch single in the 11th inning gave the Detroit Tigers a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Angels Sunday after Jim Donahue's ninth inning relief job tripped the Tigers to score a 3-1 triumph in the opener.

The victories extended the American League leaders winning streak to seven games.

Brown came to the plate with the bases loaded in the 11th and punched a single to right, scoring Norm Cash with the winning run.

Donahue, who saved the opener for Bob Bruce by retiring the last two batters with the bases loaded, also relieved in the nightcap and was credited with his first Major League victory.

The Angels nearly won the nightcap in the 10th by taking a 2-1 lead on Ken Aspromonte's single, a sacrifice and a pinch single by Ken Hunt. However, the Tigers, who have not lost since opening day, tied the score in the last of the 10th on Dick Gerner's pinch home run.

Starters Jim Bunning of Detroit and Ron Kline of Los Angeles hooked up in a tight duel through nine innings. Both teams scored a run in the third, but from then on Bunning and Kline pitched shutout ball.

The Angels rallied in the ninth inning of the opener but Donahue's clutch relief pitching stopped them cold. He was summoned from the bullpen with the bases loaded and one out and induced Hunt to foul out and Leo Burke to pop out.

In the nightcap, Donahue pitched the 11th inning and permitted only one batter to reach base by a walk.

Brown was also a star of the first game. His fifth-inning homer gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead. Detroit added two more runs in the sixth on Al Kaline's single, Rocky Colavito's double, an error by Cerv, and a single by Steve Boros.

Death Takes Jack Barry, 73, Member Of $100,000 Infield

Connie Mack Star Coached At Holy Cross Since 1921

SHREWSBURY, Mass. (UPI) — Jack Barry, a member of the late Connie Mack's famed $100,000 infield with the old Philadelphia Athletics, died Sunday at the age of 73.

Barry had been baseball coach at Holy Cross since 1921. The shortstop would have observed his 74th birthday Wednesday. He died at his home here of cancer.

Barry had been in baseball for 56 years and coached at Holy Cross for 40 years.

A tough but quiet-spoken man, Barry teamed with first baseman Stuffy McInnis, second baseman Eddie Collins and third baseman Frank (Home Run) Baker for Mack's old infield just before World War II.

Mack once termed Barry "the greatest shortstop there ever was" and chose him on his "dream team" picked in 1948 before his death.

However, Barry was never named a member of the baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Barry was noted as a "glove man" but never was much of a major league hitter. His highest batting average in 11 years with the A's and the Boston Red Sox was .275.

Senators Lose To Twins, 1-0

Kralick's Single Wins Own Game

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Pitcher Jack Kralick pitched and batted the Minnesota Twins to a 1-0 victory over Washington Sunday in 43-degree weather.

The Minnesota southpaw, who picked up his first victory of the campaign, sent across the Twins' only run with a ground single between first baseman R. C. Stevens and second baseman Danny O'Connell in the fifth inning to score Billy Gardner from second.

The Senators threatened only twice before the 13,408 fans who ignored morning-long rains to attend the game. Marty Keough led off the fourth with a two-base blow. After O'Connell grounded out and Kralick gave up his first base on balls, Stevens hit into a double play to end the inning.

The Nats also put two men on in the fifth after two were out. Losing pitcher Dick Donovan ended the threat by lining to Gardner at second.

Giants, St. Louis Split Twin Bill

San Francisco (AP) — Pinch-hitter Maury McDermott doubled home three St. Louis runs in the ninth inning Sunday, salvaging a 7-4 nightcap victory after the San Francisco Giants won the doubleheader opener 2-1.

The split left the two clubs tied in second place behind National League-leading Los Angeles.

McDermott, who struck out to end the first game, slammed his hit to left center off reliever Jim Duffalo as the Cardinals rallied for five ninth inning runs.

San Francisco relievers Billy O'Dell and Bob Bolin squashed St. Louis uprisings in the final two innings of the opener when both times the Cards had the tying run on third base with one out.

Barrelville, Salisbury, Lonaconing Win Loop Openers

Moorefield Bows 4-3 To Old Exports

Richards Whiffs 15; Old Gees Blanked; Flintstone Beaten

Dave Richards, strong-armed righthander for Barrelville, struck out 15 batters and allowed only two hits as he hurled the defending champion Old Exports to a 4-3 triumph over Moorefield yesterday in their Pen Mar Baseball League opener at Moorefield.

In two other loop openers yesterday, Lonaconing's new entry defeated Flintstone, 8-3, at Lonaconing and Salisbury's Cardinals blanked the Mt. Savage Old Germans, 10-0, at Mt. Savage. The other league encounter between Hyndman and Frostburg on the latter's diamond was postponed until Saturday at 3 p.m. because of wet grounds.

Lusty hitting by Van Parsons and Ronnie Cage in the early innings was all the batting support

Parsons needed yesterday. Parsons doubled home a pair of runs following two walks in the first inning, then he and Cage smashed back-to-back home runs in the third to account for all of Barrelville's tallies.

Allowed One Hit

Richards permitted only one hit through seven innings before running into a wild spell which led to Moorefield's three runs in the eighth. Passes to Jim Barr, George Hott and Bob Wilson loaded the bases for Moorefield and Harlan Hott singled home two tallies. Wilson scored the third run on a wild pitch.

Robert "Rabbit" Keister spun a four-hit shutout to spoil Mt. Savage's home opener. The Salisbury twirler was backed by an 11-hit attack which accounted for eight runs in the first three innings. Keister struck out eight and walked a pair in besting Bob Blank, Old Germans starter.

Jim Keister, Jay Hill, Tucker Cain and Rabbit Keister each obtained two hits for Salisbury. Rodney Johnson's double and a pair of singles by Manager Kenny Johnson was all the batting support mustered by the losers.

The outstanding fielding play in the game was Ronnie Neubiser's running catch of George Lauder's long fly ball in right field with the sacks loaded in the first inning to end the Salisbury scoring.

Lose 19 Straight

Roger Wilson and Everett Spiker each had three hits to pace Lonaconing's attack against two Flintstone pitchers. Carl Donald picked up the win although relieved by Jerry Lancaster in the eighth.

The loss was the 19th straight for Manager Charley Doyle's Flintstone nine extending back to last season. The last-place Farmers finished 2-26 last year, winning only two forfeit decisions over Mt. Savage and Frostburg. The last Flintstone win came on June 12 when Frostburg's Merchants forfeited to the Farmers.

Ray Redinger, John Price and Don Kinton each had two hits for the losers. Jim Norris was the losing pitcher.

Shea To Direct Fairgo Racing

Mackin Is Sought For Secretary Post

Matthias "Ty" Shea, of Baltimore, will return to Fairgo after an absence of 11 years to serve as director of racing for the 12-day race meeting of the Cumberland Fair Association, September 11-23, it has been announced by Harry J. Barton, general manager.

Shea served as racing secretary here in 1948, succeeding Bill Shewbridge, and in 1949 he was director of racing when J. Fred Colwill made his bow as racing secretary here and served in that capacity for nine years.

Edward J. Brennan, general manager of the Monmouth track at Oceanport, N. J., who was Cumberland's first racing secretary and served here for 21 years, starting in 1925, will also assist in helping revive the thoroughbred sport here after an absence of two years. Brennan and Shea have been associated with major tracks for many years.

J. Melvin Mackin, of Havre de Grace, has been asked by the local association, to serve as racing secretary for the September meeting. Mackin has served in various capacities here in the past.

Improvements to the stable area and jockey quarters will be made at Fairgo.

The "film patrol" will be one of the innovations at the local half mile for the association's 35th meeting.

Camper Club To Combine Dinner With Pitt Alumni

Watash Sends Out Invitations For Affair On May 2

Plans are under way to combine the Camper Club All Sports dinner for Allegheny High School athletes with a reunion of University of Pittsburgh Alumni on Tuesday, May 2, at the Allegheny High School cafeteria, it was announced yesterday.

Since John Michelson, head football coach at Pitt, will be the guest speaker, the Camper Club agreed to make it a dual affair by inviting University of Pittsburgh grads of the tri-state area. Michelson will be accompanied by his assistant Steve Petro.

John Watash, Pitt alumnus, who teaches bookkeeping and law at Allegheny High School, has sent out invitations to approximately 365 Pitt graduates in Allegheny county, nearby Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland.

Robert MacDonald, president of the Potomac Edison Company at Hagerstown, chairman of the Pitt Fund Raising Drive, who is scheduled to appear in Washington, D. C., with Michelson on April 27, heads the list of persons invited to the local event.

Richard W. Kirsch, of 707 Piedmont Avenue, who was in the same chemistry class with Michelson at Pitt and Dr. Jack E. Arch and Dr. David H. Miller, also of Cumberland, have accepted invitations to attend the dinner.

Watash states that approximately 30 University of Pittsburgh graduates live in the immediate Cumberland area and seven reside at Frostburg. The gathering of grads here will be the first step taken toward the organization of a Pitt Alumni chapter for this area.

James W. "Jim" Gaffney will be the toastmaster at the Camper Club dinner.

Meyersdale On Beall's Grid Slate

Petersburg Added As PVC Opponent

Petersburg and Meyersdale will replace Barrackville and Moorefield on Beall High School's football schedule this year, according to the nine-game slate announced by Coach Jerry Calhoun.

The Vikings of Petersburg High School will be Beall's opening opponent at Frostburg, September 8. Meyersdale will be met on the Pennsylvanians' field September 16.

Petersburg is the first of five games on the schedule of the 1960 Potomac Valley Conference champions. The Mountaineers were 4-0 in the conference last season. Other P.V.C. foes are Southern of Oakland, Romney, Keyser and LaSalle.

Non-conference opponents on the Beall schedule in addition to Meyersdale are Fort Hill, Charles Town and Allegany.

Beall has two open dates, Oct. 13 and 20, and would like to schedule one more game, preferably with a P.V.C. opponent or any nearby school.

Jerry Calhoun will be at the helm for the fifth year. Last year his Mountaineers won five games and lost four. Over four seasons his Beall teams have won 21, lost 16 and played two tie games.

Charleston Lands Baseball Tourney

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia High School baseball tournament is being moved from Parkersburg to Charleston, the Secondary Schools Activities Commission (SSAC) announced Sunday.

The announcement by SSAC executive secretary W. Gordon Elison confirmed a report earlier this month that the tournament would be played in the capital city.

Elison said the event will be held May 31-June 1 at Watt Powell Park, home of the now-defunct Charleston Senators of the American Association.

The tournament has been held at Parkersburg since 1951 with the exception of 1958 when it was played at Mullens. It was last held in Charleston in 1949.

Von Clay Tests Harold Johnson In Title Scrap

Light-Heavy Fight Scheduled Tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Harold Johnson, hungry for the success and money that have eluded him through 14 years of ring warfare, makes the first defense of his National Boxing Association light-heavyweight championship here Monday night. He meets Von Clay, a remade fighter after only 3 years as a pro.

The 32-year-old Johnson, one of boxing's great counter-punchers, is rated at least a 3-1 favorite to defeat his fellow Philadelphian in the scheduled 15-rounder at the arena. There will be no television.

Clay, with only 18 pro fights (13-3-2) under his belt, earned a title shot with two recent impressive victories, both over foreign foes. He kayaked Rudolph Diaz, Argentine champion, who had won 20 in a row, and then outpointed previously unbeaten Chick Calderwood in London, separating the Scot from a 30-fight winning streak.

The former car washer started fast as a pro, winning 10 and fighting a pair of draws before losing to Tiger Floyd and twice to Doug Jones. The defeats and a draw with Sixto Rodriguez prompted Manager Tony Graziano to send Clay back to the gym for a fistie re-education.

Pender Earns $71,559 Purse For Victory

Basilio Is Loser, Collects $40,724

BOSTON (UPI)—Paul Pender can lick Carmen Basilio but he can't beat National Boxing Association middleweight champ Gene Fullmer—according to Basilio.

Pender, the 30-year-old former fireman, retained his Massachusetts, New York and European "world middleweight" crown Saturday night in a unanimous 15-round decision over Basilio.

Says Fullmer Better
"I fought them both," Basilio said after the Boston Garden battle. "It would be a tough fight, but Fullmer would win."

The statement by the 34-year-old Basilio came despite the fact that Pender twice floored Carmen in their bout witnessed by 12,168 and a national television audience.

It was the first time in Basilio's 13-year career that he has been knocked out. Fullmer did not put the stocky Basilio down but Pender did it twice. Yet, according to Basilio, Fullmer still could beat Pender.

The champion announced following his victory that he would meet British boxer Terry Downes in London, probably next July 3. Winner Gets $71,559

Pender collected $71,559 as his share of Saturday night's gross of $153,898, with television accounting for $75,000 of it.

Basilio, discounted, at least for the present, any retirement from a long ring career. He picked up $40,724 for taking a 15-round pounding from Pender and apparently believed the best pension plan he could get would be more of the same.

Keyser took the opening game by the score of 8-0 and now owns a conference record of 2-1. Fort Ashby has lost its first two games of the season.

Hyndman High School's Hornets go after their second win of the season in the Bedford County League when they face Everett Southern High School at Everett today.

Coach John Keller's team opened the season with a 3-2 decision over Northern Bedford. Everett is 1-1 to date, having downed Chestnut Ridge (Schellsburg), the defending champions by the score of 8-1, and lost to Tussey Mountain of Saxton, 8-7.

Potomac State Captures Pair

Potomac State's Catamounts swept a doubleheader from Alderson-Broadhead College Saturday at Keyser, winning the seven-inning opener, 3-0, behind Bill Funkhouser's no-hit pitching, and taking the abbreviated nightcap, 8-2, in a game which was called after 4 1/2 innings because of rain.

The double triumph gives Coach John Fox's Catamounts a record of 5-4 with a winning streak of four in a row.

Funkhouser walked four and whiffed eight in blanking A-B without a hit. Potomac State obtained two bingles off Kittle but A-B was guilty of seven errors which resulted in all the Catamounts' runs being unearned.

In the second game Potomac State pushed across four runs in the first inning, added another in the second and three more in the third, one on Pitcher Dave Wilson's double.

Wilson picked up the victory, the Catamounts southpaw yielding only three hits.

Ted Femi garnered three hits for the Cats in the twin bill.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have received many letters from girls who can't say no. My problem deals with a girl who can't say yes.

The young lady is attractive, well educated and works in our office. We all like her a great deal and we know she reads your column every day. Please print this letter for her benefit as well as for those who must listen to her.

A phone conversation which I heard five minutes ago sounded like this: "Yup. Ya. Yeah? Yep. Un-huh. Yah. Yehetcha. O. K." Is there any hope?—PIPELINE GANG

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 10-year-old son is having trouble in school because he's smarter than his teacher. She's a neurotic spinster who should not be teaching school. She takes out her personal frustration on the children.

The first step is calling it to her attention, which you did. I hope she appreciates your interest, and learns to say yes—at the proper time, that is.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 10-year-old son is having trouble in school because he's smarter than his teacher. She's a neurotic spinster who should not be teaching school. She takes out her personal frustration on the children.

We had our son's I. Q. tested and he should be in a higher grade but the teacher refuses to promote him because she claims he doesn't do the required work in the class he's in. Of course he doesn't. He's bored.

Yesterday when my son told me the teacher bawled him out in front of the class because he disagreed with her I got so mad I went to the principal's home after dinner. He stuck up for the teacher and said my son is undisciplined and a trouble-maker. Was Edison disciplined? Was Albert Schweitzer disciplined? I doubt it. What can a mother do in a situation like this?—BRICK WALL

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South the dealer, you hold:
♠K Q K Q 9 ♠A Q 8 7 3 ♠A J
What is your opening bid?

A.—Two no trump. This is one of those in-between hands; that is, strong to risk a one bid being passed out and not quite strong enough to merit a demand opening. Since it is relatively balanced and possesses all the other qualifications, a two no trump opening is our choice.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠K 6 10 2 ♠A 8 5 ♠A J 7 4 3 2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Four diamonds, with the intention of raising spades on the next round. This hand is on the verge of a slam and should be safe for 11 tricks. The recommended sequence of bids will reveal all the high cards in your hand and leave it up to partner to bid a slam if he has a heart control.

Q. 3—With East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K Q 10 9 8 ♠A K J 10 Q 9 4 2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Double Redouble 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Double. You and your partner have more than your share of the high cards, a fact which is borne out by North's redouble. At this point it may be considered that, if the contract is to be doubled, North should do it. However, he may, in view of vulnerability, suspect that you were in an experimental frame of mind and since the enemy appeared to be on their way it would have been premature to double. It is now clear that East was up to mischief (or, when partner raised, he didn't go on).

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠A J 8 4 ♠K Q 8 10 8 6 5 3 ♠2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Seven hearts. We are to be true that you have bid your hand quite strongly, it is also true that you have hitherto undisciplined factors. Your trump support need not have included both heart honors and your second round control of clubs must be decisive.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠Q 10 9 3 2 ♠Q J 10 3 ♠K Q 6 4
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—There is at least an even chance that this hand will play to better advantage at a suit contract and the recommended call is three clubs or diamonds. If partner returns to spades we would proceed to game in that suit. If he persists in no trump, that should be the best contract.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
♠J 6 3 ♠K 7 ♠A 10 9 7 ♠J 10 4 3
Your partner opens the bidding with one club. What is your response?

A.—Seven hearts. We are to be true that you have bid your hand quite strongly, it is also true that you have hitherto undisciplined factors. Your trump support need not have included both heart honors and your second round control of clubs must be decisive.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You've received many letters from girls who can't say no. My problem deals with a girl who can't say yes.

The young lady is attractive, well educated and works in our office. We all like her a great deal and we know she reads your column every day. Please print a letter for her benefit as well as for those who must listen to it.

A phone conversation which I had five minutes ago sounded like this: "Yup. Ya. Yeah? Yep. Uh-huh. Yah. Yehetcha. O. K." Is there any hope?—PIPELINE ANG

Dear Gang: Yup—there's hope. The girl has fallen into a lazy speech habit, but with effort she can correct it.

The first step is calling it to her attention, which you did. I hope she appreciates your interest, and learns to say yes—at the proper time, that is.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 1-year-old son is having trouble in school because he's smarter than his teacher. She's a neurotic sister who should not be teaching school. She takes out her personal frustration on the children.

We had our son's I. Q. tested and he should be in a higher grade but the teacher refuses to promote him because she claims he doesn't do the required work in the class he's in. Of course he doesn't. He's bored.

Was Edison disciplined? Was Albert Schweitzer disciplined? I doubt it. What can a mother do in a situation like this?—BRICK WALL

DEAR BRICK: Your son's I. Q. may be terrific, but what good is it if he is unmotivated, undisciplined, uncooperative and has a mother who runs interference for him constantly?

No teacher should have to take sass from a smart-alecky kid no matter how bright he is. You've already damaged him pretty well. Mom, so now you'd better get him to a professional who can help him channel his super-brightness productively. Give him a chance to live in the world with other people. The doctor will probably suggest home projects to challenge his intellect. Meantime, I suggest you keep your ear out of Sonny's water.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Six months ago my brother married a beautiful girl who is young and fresh and too darned interested in my husband. At first I thought my imagination was working overtime but now I'm sure I'm right. She calls him "Big Daddy" and always manages to squeeze next to him in the car or wherever there's room enough for only one person to sit.

My husband has never given me anything to worry about but it must be flattering to a fellow 4' to be selected as a target by a gorgeous 22-year-old.

This kind of trouble I don't need. How does a smart wife handle the problem?—INSECURE

DEAR INSECURE: You're in a position to give "Big Daddy" a lot more affection than she is. Show him that you love him and that you trust him. Too many women shove their husbands right into alien arms by running scared—and showing it.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1961, Field Enterprises, Inc.)

West Virginia VFW Conclave Held In Keyser

U.S. Commander Urges Patriotism

Visits by four national officers, including National Commander-in-Chief, T. C. (Ted) Connell, highlighted the annual spring conference of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Ladies Auxiliary, Department of West Virginia, over the weekend at Keyser.

An estimated 250 persons crowded into the dining room of Nancy Hanks Post 3518, the host organization, Saturday evening to hear Mr. Connell proclaim that "if we are to fight Communism, all America must recommit itself to the principles of freedom for which this nation was founded."

The commander-in-chief, a resident of Killeen, Texas, said that history is the greatest guidepost for the future. He added that the VFW is rich in history and ideals for all Americans.

"Today," he said, "we enjoy freedom... but the future is in doubt. We talk of peace... but peace depends on many things and most of all justice... the kind of justice that is not known behind the iron curtain, the bamboo curtain, or in Communist Cuba."

"Justice is morality," Mr. Connell added, "and the VFW's desire for peace includes a relationship between peace, justice, morality, and religion." He urged all VFW posts to promote "Back to God" movements.

Community Service
The speaker spoke of the freedom to do good and cited community service projects sponsored by the veterans, pointing out that the VFW is dedicated to taking care of its own people. "Freedom is the basic unit of all society," he said, "... the very foundation on which family life is built. Our greatest asset is in the youth of America."

During his address he paid special tribute to Rep. Harley O. Staggers, of Keyser; President E. E. Church and Dean K. S. McKee, of Potomac State College for their Americanism program. The three men were among the special guests at the banquet. He cited in particular the programs being executed in the colleges and the high schools of this area.

School Emphasis
Mr. Connell said the school systems should take time to teach the children about Americanism and the history of their country. He added that each person will be charged with being a "flag waver."

"Too many Americans don't bother to vote... are not interested in our land. We ought to dedicate a few moments each day that the American public may be kept up on current events... allow our public officials to lead us in the right direction... and be active on every level of government, local, state, national, and worldwide."

He said that having a great armed force is not enough... patriotism, love of country, and unqualified devotion are equally important... and the United States is worthy of such devotion.

The veterans were reminded to recommit themselves to the ideals of the VFW. "May it not be said that we have failed... that we lost the light of freedom that was handed to us."

After a standing ovation at the conclusion of his address the national commander led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

To Tour Europe
Mr. Connell, making his seventh visit to West Virginia since 1955 and visiting the 43d state since last September, departed yesterday on a European tour.

He was presented to the gathering by Ovid L. Graham of Hinton, commander for the Department of West Virginia, who also introduced Grady C. Pittard Jr., chairman of the Southern Conference; John Frye, District 6, National Council member; and Joe P. Wood, national chief of staff. Pittard and Wood are from Georgia and Frye is from Ohio.

Howard Fawcett, state membership chairman, made awards to various posts acquiring 100 percent membership in the campaign. Keyser was among those honored.

Anne Davis, Auxiliary president, Department of West Virginia, spoke briefly and introduced her staff. Words of welcome were extended by Post Commander Robert Whisner and Mrs. Lillian Kimble, Auxiliary president.

Toastmaster was Charles W. Smith, post judge advocate, who introduced guests from the college, the press, the ROTC Staff, the National Guard, the State Legislature, and Congress.

Rev. John J. O'Connell, assistant pastor at the Church of the Assumption, gave the invocation and benediction was offered by Ralph McElfresh, department chaplain.

At the conclusion of the dinner program the veterans gathered at Rogers Funeral Home to conduct memorial services for a departed member of the Keyser post, Harry Whetsell.

The conference closed at noon Sunday following various meetings and a worship service. Saturday's schedule included schools of instruction, a social hour, and a dance in the ballroom with music by the Aristocrats. A floor show was presented at intermission by the Steckman Dance Studio of Cumberland.

Realtor Displays Relic

J. Henry Holzshu, local Realtor, is displaying during Realtor Week, April 23 to 29, the 70-year-old cash recorder pictured above. Forerunner of the modern cash register, the cash drawer is opened by means of a secret keyboard. Entries were made by hand on the scroll at the top left. Mr. Holzshu thinks the inventor must have been a clairvoyant since he included the tiny brass plate just left of center—a "Penny Slot" that would have been handy for the sales tax that did not appear until decades later.

Realtor's Relic Recalls History Of Profession

Realtor Week, April 23 to 29, is a time for focusing attention on ultra-modern housing operations. It is also a time for digging into the history that makes modern living possible. And in the office of a member of the Cumberland Board of Realtors is a historic object that tells a story all its own.

States Agree On Income Tax Technicalities

Several technicalities concerning income tax reciprocity with West Virginia were worked out at a conference held in the office of State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein in Annapolis.

At his invitation Mr. Goldstein said, officials of West Virginia, which included G. Thomas Battle, assistant tax commissioner, Clifford Lantz, director of the West Virginia Income Tax Division, and Dr. Henry D. Collins of the state university, who is acting as consultant, met with him and worked out matters that would prove advantageous to employers and employees alike.

The new West Virginia income tax law is a reciprocal one in that credit will be allowed residents of Maryland who work in that state for the income tax paid Maryland. Moreover, the state tax commissioner of West Virginia has authority under the law to relieve any West Virginia employer from withholding the West Virginia tax from the salaries and wages of non-residents when it can be shown that the tax paid to their state of residence will offset the West Virginia tax.

May Change Law
A review of the rates of the two states, Mr. Goldstein said, clearly shows that the Maryland tax credit would offset the West Virginia tax in all but the extremely high brackets of income, and for that reason the West Virginia officials agreed that no West Virginia income tax should be withheld from Marylanders who work in that state.

There is, however, one feature of the West Virginia law that differs from Maryland law, Mr. Goldstein said. Maryland residents will have to file non-resident returns to West Virginia after the close of the year to show that the Maryland tax credit does offset the West Virginia tax.

The West Virginia officials agreed that this feature should be changed and they promised to lend their support to an amendment to the West Virginia law at the next legislative session.

Under the Maryland law, the many residents of West Virginia who have been paying income tax to that state as non-residents because of their employment here will no longer be required to file tax returns to Maryland and no withholding of Maryland income tax will be made from their compensation after they have filed with their Maryland employers a certificate showing that they reside in West Virginia.

Form Is Needed
Mr. Goldstein said the attention of all Maryland employers was called to these changes in the laws, particularly employers in Western Maryland where hundreds of West Virginians are employed. Those who employ residents of West Virginia should have them execute Maryland Form MW-507-A, Certificate of Non-Residence in Maryland, so that the withholding can be immediately stopped.

While Maryland will no doubt lose some revenue as a result of West Virginia enacting an income tax law, Mr. Goldstein hailed the results of the conference as one which exemplified real cooperation between the two states.

PPGC Sales Down
The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company announced yesterday that sales for the first quarter of 1961 were $128,994,776 compared with $158,200,409 during the first three months of 1960. Net earnings after income tax provisions of $3,061,490, were $3,586,013 equivalent to 35 cents per share.

In the comparable period of 1960, net earnings were $12,145,496, after income tax provisions of $13,477,883, which were equivalent to $1.18 per share on stock now outstanding.

Of the sale of houses, for instance — good houses — for $3,000; of the indignance of employers in 1960, when fidelity bonding was introduced, as a reflection on their good judgment; and of the outraged employees themselves who contended that a bond indicated a lack of trust in them.

Insurance, then as now — just as ham goes with eggs and sauerkraut goes with wieners — went with real estate. And one thing that did not go on the scroll in the early days of automobile insurance — in 1911 to be exact — was

Local Banks To Display U.S. Currency Collection

Cumberland residents who haven't had a face-to-face meeting with $10,000 or $5,000 bills recently will have a chance to get acquainted with some here today at The First National Bank and Trust Company, Second National Bank and The Liberty Trust Company, which will have an exhibit of all types of United States currency on display.

The exhibit, obtained from the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, will continue on display through the rest of the week.

All denominations of United States currency from $1 through $10,000 are included in the exhibit. It contains facsimiles of Federal Reserve Notes, Federal Reserve Bank Notes, United States Currency, and Silver Certificates, some of them in both the old "shin-plaster" size and the present-day size.

It also has a panel showing the step-by-step procedure followed in the minting of a coin.

United States paper money, although it all looks very much the same, does differ in appearance in certain technical aspects.

Most people, including many bankers, seldom take the time to look at their money carefully. It's not particularly necessary, except when it is known that counterfeiters are at work in the area. But it may be worth noting that of the three principal kinds of paper money in circulation today, Silver Certificates have a blue Treasury seal, United States Notes a red seal, and Federal Reserve Notes a green seal.

Silver Certificates come only in $1, $5, and $10 denominations and United States Notes in only $2 and $5 denominations, while Federal Reserve Notes are printed in denominations of $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000.

Federal Reserve Notes make up the bulk of the currency in circulation today. These are issued, in accordance with law, by the country's 12 Federal Reserve Banks.

Most of the paper money in use in Cumberland is probably notes of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, the Reserve bank that together with its Charlotte and Baltimore branches serves the Fifth Federal Reserve District.

The exhibit is sponsored by the Western Maryland Coin Club, Inc., in connection with this week's observance of National Coin Week.

Clark Asserts Parks Would Up Cost Of Dams

North Branch Unit Included In Report

WASHINGTON (AP)—Parkland preservation would increase the cost of dams proposed along the Potomac River by about $75 million, Gen. Frederick J. Clarke said Saturday night.

Clarke, District of Columbia engineer commissioner, was interviewed on Army Engineers proposals for dams in the North Branch of the Potomac and elsewhere. The series of projects would flood some recreational land in Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia.

Clarke said the projects could be built for $225 million if they are given top priority. But, he said, giving first consideration to parkland preservation would raise the cost to about $300 million.

CAB Calls Off Search For Plane

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia Civil Air Patrol headquarters here Sunday called off a search for a plane missing since April 16 after checking out several leads in the eastern part of the state.

The CAP had searched the Virginia-West Virginia border after a resident of the mountainous area said he heard a low flying plane and a loud noise immediately afterward early last Sunday. The report came from a resident of the Tom Brook, Va., area.

A check further south also proved fruitless after a CAP mobile unit thought it had spotted what could have been the tail section of the missing plane.

The plane left White Plains, N. Y. last Sunday for Guatemala.

The craft was piloted by Manfred Kaplowitz who was accompanied by Alfred Tabush, both of Guatemala City.

U.S. Commander Urges Patriotism

Visits by four national officers, including National Commander-in-Chief, T. C. (Ted) Connell, highlighted the annual spring conference of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Ladies Auxiliary, Department of West Virginia, over the weekend at Keyser.

An estimated 250 persons crowded into the dining room of Nancy Hanks Post 3518, the host organization, Saturday evening to hear Mr. Connell proclaim that "if we are to fight Communism, all America must rededicate themselves today and tomorrow to the principles of freedom for which this nation was founded."

The commander-in-chief, a resident of Killeen, Texas, said that history is the greatest guidepost for the future. He added that the VFW is rich in history and ideals for all Americans.

"Today," he said, "we enjoy freedom . . . but the future is in doubt. We talk of peace . . . but peace depends on many things and most of all justice . . . the kind of justice that is not known behind the iron curtain, the bamboo curtain, or in Communist Cuba."

"Justice is morality," Mr. Connell added, "and the VFW's desire for peace includes a relationship between peace, justice, morality, and religion." He urged all VFW posts to promote "Back to God" movements.

Community Service

The speaker spoke of the freedom to do good and cited community service projects sponsored by the veterans, pointing out that the VFW is dedicated to taking care of its own people. "Freedom is the basic unit of all society," he said . . . "the very foundation on which family life is built. Our greatest asset is in the youth of America."

During his address he paid special tribute to Rep. Harley O. Staggers, of Keyser; President E. E. Church and Dean K. S. McKee, of Potomac State College, for their Americanism program. The three men were among the special guests at the banquet. He cited in particular the programs being executed in the colleges and the high schools of this area.

Mr. Connell said the school systems should take time to teach the children about Americanism and the history of their country. He added that each person will be charged with being a "flag waver."

"Too many Americans don't bother to vote . . . are not interested in our land. We ought to dedicate a few moments each day that the American public may be kept up on current events . . . allow our public officials to lead us in the right direction . . . and be active on every level of government, local, state, national, and worldwide."

He said that having a great armed forces is not enough . . . patriotism, love of country, and unqualified devotion are equally important . . . and the United States is worthy of such devotion.

The veterans were reminded to rededicate themselves to the ideals of the VFW. "May it be said that we have failed . . . that we lost the light of freedom that was handed to us."

After a standing ovation at the conclusion of his address the national commander led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

To Tour Europe

Mr. Connell, making his seventh visit to West Virginia since 1955 and visiting the 43d state since last September, departed yesterday on a European tour.

He was presented to the gathering by Ovid L. Graham of Hinton, commander for the Department of West Virginia, who also introduced Grady C. Pittard Jr., chairman of the Southern Conference; John Frye, District 6, National Council member; and Joe P. Wood, national chief of staff. Pittard and Wood are from Georgia and Frye is from Ohio.

Howard Fawcett, state membership chairman, made awards to various posts acquiring 100 percent membership in the campaign. Keyser was among those honored.

Anne Davis, Auxiliary president, Department of West Virginia, spoke briefly and introduced her staff. Words of welcome were extended by Post Commander Robert Whisner and Mrs. Lillian Kimble, Auxiliary president.

Toastmaster was Charles W. Smith, post judge advocate, who introduced guests from the college, the press, the ROTC Staff, the National Guard, the State Legislature, and Congress.

Rev. John J. O'Connell, assistant pastor at the Church of the Assumption, gave the invocation and benediction was offered by Ralph McElfresh, department chaplain.

At the conclusion of the dinner program the veterans gathered at Rogers Funeral Home to conduct memorial services for a departed member of the Keyser post, Harry Whetsell.

The conference closed at noon Sunday following various meetings and a worship service. Saturday's schedule included schools of instruction, a social hour, and a dance in the ballroom with music by the Aristocrats. A floor show was presented at intermission by the Steckman Dance Studio of Cumberland.

Realtor Displays Relic

J. Henry Holzshu, local Realtor, is displaying during Realtor Week, April 23 to 29, the 70-year-old cash recorder pictured above. Fore-runner of the modern cash register, the cash drawer is opened by means of a secret keyboard. Entries were made by hand on the scroll at the top left. Mr. Holzshu thinks the inventor must have been a clairvoyant since he included the tiny brass plate just left of center—a "Penny Slot" that would have been handy for the sales tax that did not appear until decades later.

Realtor's Relic Recalls History Of Profession

Realtor Week, April 23 to 29, is a time for focusing attention on ultra-modern housing operations. It is also a time for digging into the history that makes modern living possible. And in the office of a member of the Cumberland Board of Realtors is a historic object that tells a story all its own.

States Agree On Income Tax Technicalities

Several technicalities concerning income tax reciprocity with West Virginia were worked out at a conference held in the office of State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein in Annapolis.

At his invitation Mr. Goldstein said, officials of West Virginia, which included G. Thomas Battle, assistant tax commissioner, Clifford Lantz, director of the West Virginia Income Tax Division, and Dr. Henry D. Collins of the state university, who is acting as consultant, met with him and worked out matters that would prove advantageous to employers and employees alike.

The new West Virginia income tax law is a reciprocal one in that credit will be allowed residents of Maryland who work in that state for the income tax paid Maryland. Moreover, the state tax commissioner of West Virginia has authorized the law to relieve any West Virginia employer from withholding the West Virginia tax from the salaries and wages of non-residents when it can be shown that the tax paid to their state of residence will offset the West Virginia tax.

May Change Law
A review of the rates of the two states, Mr. Goldstein said, clearly shows that the Maryland tax credit would offset the West Virginia tax in all but the extremely high brackets of income, and for that reason the West Virginia officials agreed that no West Virginia income tax should be withheld from Marylanders who work in that state.

There is, however, one feature of the West Virginia law that differs from Maryland law, Mr. Goldstein said. Maryland residents will have to file non-resident returns to West Virginia after the close of the year to show that the Maryland tax credit does offset the West Virginia tax.

The West Virginia officials agreed that this feature should be changed and they promised to lend their support to an amendment to the West Virginia law at the next legislative session.

Under the Maryland law, the many residents of West Virginia who have been paying income tax to this state as non-residents because of their employment here will no longer be required to file tax returns to Maryland and no withholding of Maryland income tax will be made from their compensation after they have filed with their Maryland employers a certificate showing that they reside in West Virginia.

Form Is Needed
Mr. Goldstein said the attention of all Maryland employers was called to these changes in the laws, particularly employers in Western Maryland where hundreds of West Virginians are employed. Those who employ residents of West Virginia should have them execute Maryland Form MW-507-A, Certificate of Non-Residence in Maryland, so that the withholding can be immediately stopped.

While Maryland will no doubt lose some revenue as a result of West Virginia enacting an income tax law, Mr. Goldstein hailed the results of the conference as one which exemplified real cooperation between the two states.

Local Banks To Display U.S. Currency Collection

Cumberland residents who haven't had a face-to-face meeting with $10,000 or $5,000 bills recently will have a chance to get acquainted with some here today at The First National Bank and Trust Company, Second National Bank and The Liberty Trust Company, which will have an exhibit of all types of United States currency on display.

The exhibit, obtained from the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, will continue on display through the rest of the week.

All denominations of United States currency from $1 through $10,000 are included in the exhibit. It contains facsimiles of Federal Reserve Notes, Federal Reserve Bank Notes, United States Currency, and Silver Certificates, some of them in both the old "shin-plaster" size and the present-day size.

It also has a panel showing the step-by-step procedure followed in the minting of a coin.

United States paper money, although it all looks very much the same, does differ in appearance in certain technical aspects.

Most people, including many bankers, seldom take the time to look at their money carefully. It's not particularly necessary, except when it is known that counterfeiters are at work in the area. But it may be worth noting that of the three principal kinds of paper money in circulation today, Silver Certificates have a blue Treasury seal, United States Notes a red seal, and Federal Reserve Notes a green seal.

Silver Certificates come only in $1, $5, and $10 denominations and United States Notes in only $2 and $5 denominations, while Federal Reserve Notes are printed in denominations of $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000.

Federal Reserve Notes make up the bulk of the currency in circulation today. These are issued, in accordance with law, by the country's 12 Federal Reserve Banks.

Most of the paper money in use in Cumberland is probably notes of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, the Reserve bank that together with its Charlotte and Baltimore branches serves the Fifth Federal Reserve District.

The exhibit is sponsored by the Western Maryland Coin Club, Inc., in connection with this week's observance of National Coin Week.

CAB Calls Off Search For Plane

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia Civil Air Patrol headquarters here Sunday called off a search for a plane missing since April 16 after checking out several leads in the eastern part of the state.

The CAP had searched the Virginia-West Virginia border after a resident of the mountainous area said he heard a loud flying plane and a loud noise immediately afterward early last Sunday. The report came from a resident of the Tom Brook, Va., area.

A check further south also proved fruitless after a CAP mobile unit thought it had spotted what could have been the tail section of the missing plane.

The plane left White Plains, N. Y. last Sunday for Guatemala. The craft was piloted by Manfred Kaplowitz who was accompanied by Alfred Tabush, both of Guatemala City.

Clark Asserts Parks Would Up Cost Of Dams

North Branch Unit Included In Report

WASHINGTON (AP)—Parkland preservation would increase the cost of dams proposed along the Potomac River by about $75 million, Gen. Frederick J. Clarke said Saturday night.

Clarke, District of Columbia engineer commissioner, was interviewed on Army Engineers proposals for dams in the North Branch of the Potomac and elsewhere. The series of projects would flood some recreational land in Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia.

Clarke said the projects could be built for $225 million if they are given top priority. But, he said, giving first consideration to parkland preservation would raise the cost to about $300 million.

Discusses the district's needs for dams, Clarke said:

"... The prospects are that by 1975 . . . you could turn on your water tap and no water would come out."

He said the dams probably will not be built unless local interests share part of the cost.

Army Engineers have recommended construction of several dams along the Potomac River basin to meet water needs in the area for the next 50 years.

The proposals include one for a $51 million facility in the North Branch Potomac River above Bloomington, Md.

Report Issued

The recommendations are part of a report made public Saturday following a study authorized by the Senate and House Public Works Committees.

The report urged early construction of the North Branch reservoir, which would provide flood on control, a water source pollution control and recreational benefits.

Similar projects are mentioned in the report for the Stony and Savage Rivers but no cost estimates were given for these proposed reservoirs. They are to be smaller than the North Branch facility.

The study indicates that the three projects will be needed by the year 2010 for control and development of water resources above Cumberland.

County Issues 6 Permits For Construction

Six building permits for new dwellings which the builders estimate will cost a total of $62,500 to construct have been issued by James G. Stevenson, clerk to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Four of these six new residences will be built in Election District 6 in the West Side suburban area.

H. A. Chaney, 1070 Braddock Road, obtained permits to build two of these houses at $10,000 each on Lots 6 and 11 along Braddock Road. Both will be of brick construction. One will be 26 by 38 feet in size and the other 20 by 42 feet.

William Reed, Ashland Avenue, obtained a permit to build a dwelling in the Sunset View development off Braddock Road. This $10,000 house will be of frame construction. John A. McGuire, 444 Goethe Street, obtained a permit to build a 46 by 28 foot frame house also in the Sunset View area.

James Alfred Aviret, 1 Washington Street, was issued a permit to build a $10,000 brick house on Centre Street in LaVale, Election District 29. It will be 22 by 40 by 26 feet in size.

Paul Richard Kyle of Barton obtained a permit to build a 38 by 36 foot frame house in Election District 9, Barton, for an estimated $6,500.

Another recent building permit was issued to Super Concrete Company, 405 Henderson Avenue, for a 20 by 24-foot metal building for ready mixed concrete at a cost of $2,300. This structure in Election District 29 will be about 1100 feet from Route 36, the Mt. Savage Road, and about 200 feet from U.S. Route 40, National Highway.
